TAXI STRIKERS CALL VOTE ON PEACE

Today

Again, I Do Not Choose.
When Women Start, Beware.
Radio and Flying.
Gandhi Sick, India Sickly.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WINSLOW, Ariz., April 12.

THE Cosmopolitan Magazine put on board this eastbound train at Williams, Ariz., tells you that Calvin Coolidge is through with public office. In his straight-forward statement in Cosmopolitan, the ex-President says he will not run for the Senate. He would be glad to do useful work, but feels that his presence in the Senate, going there from the White House, would embarrass some of his colleagues. It probably would.

It would embarrass, especially, those that are publicly dry and privately wet.

HOWEVER, no man can say that his troubles are all behind him. The ex-President may find himself in office again. He will still be a young man in 1936, when Herbert Hoover finishes his second term.

It is a 100 per cent certainty that Mr. Coolidge will make no political mistakes in the meanwhile. He simply does not know how to make them.

Is there any doubt that millions of Americans in 1936 will want "four years more of Coolidge?"

OF ALL misfortunes that can befall a man, one of the worst is to have a band of determined women in league against him. Read Euripides' "The Bacchae" and you will believe it.

Some congressmen will soon believe it also. They are the so-called "water-gin" congressmen, accused by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform of carrying gin on one shoulder, water on the other.

This organization of women opposed to prohibition intends to attack the dry voting, wet drinking statesmen in their home constituencies.

AMONG farmers' wives until recently the percentage of insanity was very high. Living isolated lives, working hard from dawn until long after dark, seeing nobody but the sometimes dull, tired husband and farm hands, was bad for the mind.

Then came rural free delivery, bringing pictures of the latest fashions, and the telephone, with news of neighbors, finally greatest blessing of all, the radio. Farmers' wives tune in and retain their sanity.

TO THE exceptional woman, rich, able to do what she pleases but hitherto finding little amusing excitement after sixty, flying offers relief.

The British Duchess of Bedford, 64 years old, goes up and down the earth at a rate of speed that old Satan never dreamed of.

She has just started the second leg of flight from London to South Africa, an able pilot and mechanic keeping her company.

YOU would say that a flying man or woman could write a book "Things I Have Seen" that would eclipse Voltaire's Chooses Vals, "Things Seen," for Voltaire crawled around on the earth's surfaces.

HOWEVER, not the eyes but the heart and brain do the real seeing. Nobody, for instance, could see a landscape as Claude Lorraine could see it. No one else sees a baby as its mother sees it.

GANDHI, starved Hindu, whose sincerity causes the British Empire more anxiety than all his 300,000,000 fellow Hindus combined, learns as other enthusiasts have done, that the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Weighing barely 100 pounds, eating no meat, taking no stimulants, a walk of 200 miles that would seem a joke to an Irishman or a Scotchman, has exhausted him. He cannot go on.

THE real problem of India has nothing to do with Great Britain and is illustrated in news of a clash between high-caste Hindus and "untouchables," miserable creatures numbering millions despised by the Hindus of high rank, who consider it a disgrace to even touch them. Many untouchables were cruelly beaten in spite of police protection. A country that classes millions of human beings lower than dogs, demands the right to marry girls under 10 years of age to adult men, and to burn young widows alive with their dead husbands' bodies, has problems more serious than British rule.

SENATOR ARTHUR ROBINSON, Republican, from Indiana, says:

"The Senate will never ratify the League Court with the so-called Root Formula drafted by the Englishman named Cecil Hurst."

Mrs. McCormick's victory with more than 200,000 votes to spare over Deneen, she opposing, he supporting the League Court foolishness, will make all Republicans think that can think. Who could imagine that the people of this nation want to be tied up in European agreements or have United States freedom of action hampered or controlled to any extent whatever by a League Court in which a solitary American judge would be outnumbered ten to one?

U. S. ENTERS MERGER FIGHT

Bethlehem and Sheet-Tube Books Examined in Inquiry Of Anti-Trust Violation

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The federal government decided today to take a hand in the squabble resulting from attempts to promote a billion-dollar merger between the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Agents of the Department of Justice have been sent to Akron and Bethlehem to examine the books and records of both companies, it was announced, to ascertain whether there is anything in the proposed merger which would violate the anti-trust laws.

If the investigation discloses there will be no lessening of competition in the steel industry as a result of the merger, the government will interpose no objections. If, on the other hand, it appears there will be, then the government will intercede.

The merger would affect approximately 20 per cent of the steel output in this country.

EATON CONTINUES FIGHT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 12.—(AP.)—Merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation today bore the approval of stockholders, but final consummation of the $1,000,000,000 deal still must run a gauntlet of court action that may make history in the nation's corporation legal battles.

Announcement that 857,821 shares of Sheet and Tube stock, 58,080 more than the necessary two-thirds majority, had been

Waiting

MRS. CARROLL MILLER

Mrs. Miller, member of the D. A. R., who says she hasn't been ousted yet, but that she's waiting. One must be patriotic in a big navy to be a member she was quoted as saying.

MRS. MILLER WAITS D.A.R. OUSTER

Action Expected for Stand Against Big Navy; Speech Cites Intolerance Evils

Mrs. Carroll Miller, Democratic leader, is waiting to be ousted by the Daughters of the American Revolution because "it seems you can't be patriotic any longer unless you believe in a big navy."

Mrs. Miller, who seconded the nomination of Alfred E. Smith as a delegate to the Democratic national convention in Houston, made the assertion herself yesterday in her talk on "The Age of Intolerance" before the College Club.

BAILEY OUSTER CITED

The statement came in connection with Mrs. Miller's comment on the ousting of Mrs. Helen Tufts Bailey from the Daughters of the American Revolution for her protest against the society's indorsement of the 70-cruiser navy bill, of which President Coolidge did not approve. Incidentally, Mrs. Miller said the rank and file of the "Daughters" knew nothing of the action against Mrs. Bailey.

Prohibition, the Ku Klux Klan, Boston's censorship of books, the Women's Christian Temperance Union's stand on smoking, censorship of books brought from abroad, Pennsylvania's blue laws and other "regulatory acts of people who want us to think, act and look as they do," were all classed by Mrs. Miller as evidences of intolerance.

"There is always an age of intolerance and political corruption after every war, but this one seems to have lasted longer and become more permanently fixed," she said.

SEES CHURCH PERIL

In quoting an Anti-Saloon League official to the effect that his organization would work through the Protestant churches, Mrs. Miller said the Protestant Church is in grave peril where

ARBITRATION SUBMITTED TO DRIVERS

Action Expected Next Week On Ministers' Plan; Mob Burns Cab, Beats Man

A meeting of striking taxicab drivers soon was reported planned today to vote on returning to work or acceptance of the arbitration proposal submitted yesterday by a committee of ministers.

Notices to the drivers were said to have been placed in the mail, calling for a meeting in Moose Temple within the next few days.

Ernest H. Miller, president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, arrived here today.

CAB BURNED BY MOB

His visit was said to have no significance in the matter of action of the men in the immediate future.

"We, of course, will consider any proposition tending to bring the men back to work," said E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee company, today.

Violence broke out anew in the taxicab strike when a crowd of men attacked a driver, stole his cab which they drove a mile away from the scene of the attack, and burned it.

Charles Blakley, 28, of 2 Ross street, was beaten by 10 men who dragged him from his cab in front of the Elks Club, Seventh street. The machine was driven to the bank of the Allgheny River at the foot of Pine street, North Side, and set on fire. Blakley was treated at the Allegheny General Hospital.

MENACE OFFICER

Edward McClain, 35, of 1930 South Eighteenth street, and J. L. Brugnaix, 35, of 2126 Carrick way, are held by police. They are said to have attempted to run down Motorcycle Patrolman James McGuire when he tried to arrest them on the Smithfield street bridge last night. According to McGuire the pair were driving along side a cab crossing the bridge and were cursing the driver.

"GONE TOO LONG"—DAVIS

"The strike should have been called off months ago," declared Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who arrived here today. "My office is one of mediation and conciliation and not compulsion. Our good offices are always ready to be tendered to adjust any labor controversy."

U. S. BOY HELPS BEAT OXFORD

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, Eng., April 2.—(AP.)—Steered by a little American, Robert E. Swartwout, of New York, Cambridge today swept to a two-length victory over Oxford in the eighty-second rowing of their historic boat race on the Thames.

It was the first time that an American had ever steered a shell in the famous event, and also was the first time that an American had earned a place in the Cambridge boat.

By today's victory Cambridge became one up one Oxford, breaking the tie of 40 victories each and one deadlock, which had been entered on the rowing books ever since 1829, when the great event first was held.

The historic event was witnessed by the usual huge throng lining both banks of the river and on craft alongside the racecourse, their spirits undampened by a light rain which came up before the race started.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—Robert Edgerton Swartwout, coxswain of the victorious Cambridge crew, is 24, weighs 105 pounds and is one of the lightest coxswains in the 101-year history of the Oxford-Cambridge regatta.

His father, Edgerton Swartwout, a New York architect, remarked before the race that his son's powerful bass voice had a great deal to do with landing a place in the Cambridge crew, because, he said, "over there they do not use megaphones."

Young Swartwout went to Cambridge six years ago, and is doing research work in English literature.

HEAT TO PASS AFTER RECORD

Cloudy skies were forecast today by Weather Observer W. S. Broizman, who stated that the temperature would be somewhat lower than yesterday and that there was a probability of showers. Tomorrow also will be cloudy, the weather man said.

Yesterday's high temperature broke all records at the local weather bureau for so early in the spring. The highest temperature was 86 degrees, two degrees higher than the record established March 25, 1929.

4 Suspects Arrested In Lottery Raid Held

Four men charged with writing clearing house numbers were held over for further investigation this morning by Magistrate Charles Papale in East End police court. They are J. D. Tearlman, 30, of 5840 Forbes street; I. Feldman, 24, of 5873 Forbes Terrace; Earnest Bulovick, 27, of 5873 Forbes Terrace, and Fount Oden, 29, of 5862 Forbes street.

Steamer Grounded, Guard Rushes Aid

NORFOLK, Va., April 12.—(AP.)—District Coast Guard headquarters here was notified last night shortly before midnight of the grounding of the steamer Cleveland near Fisherman's Island at the entrance of Chesapeake Bay. The cutter Mascoutin was sent from Norfolk to aid the stranded ship, which was reported in no immediate danger. The message telling of the mishap came from the tug Columbine, and did not give the nationality of the vessel stranded.

Girl Mysteriously Wounded in Home

FRANKLIN, Pa., April 12.—With a bullet wound in the chest, Miss Evelyn Confer, 17, of Galloway, is in serious condition in Franklin Hospital. Complete mystery surrounds the shooting, which occurred at her home at 10:30 o'clock last night. The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Confer, aroused by the shot, found their daughter in another room unconscious. Police have not established a motive.

BUS FARES HERE HIT BY PINCHOT

Excessive bus fares approved by the State Public Service Commission, are retarding Pittsburgh's natural expansion, former Gov. Gifford Pinchot declared in a broadcast last night over WJAS.

Residents here are denied modern methods of transportation because the Public Service Commission will not permit competition with the bus companies and the street cars that are jointly owned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, Pinchot averred.

Pinchot's speech was made in connection with his campaign for another term and he said if he were elected he would work for laws to abolish the commission and replace it with a Fare Rate Board, "not controlled by the public utility companies."

Pinchot reiterated his opinion that the problem facing the voters in the coming primary is to "keep the Philadelphia gang in Philadelphia."

"Gang control is always minority control. A few men organized for public plunder

DAVIS ARRIVES WITH BROWN

Francis Shunk Brown, Vare organization candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, came to town today, not to look over the situation but to be looked over. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, senatorial candidate, running with Brown, also came here today to see that Brown was properly presented to the electorate.

Brown, at breakfast in the William Penn Hotel with Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and James F. Dewey, Davis' campaign manager, asked about his visit, said, "I came here to be looked over."

'SLUSH FUND' DENIED

A half hour later Secretary Davis arrived and met his running mate. Asked about the "slush fund" charged by Senator Grundy, Davis said, "We are trying to stop money being the first

Wealthy Man Sent to 'Jail' In Exclusive Hotel

Michael Berardino, wealthy New Kensington business man, was at liberty under $1,500 bail today after having spent last night in the custody of a deputy sheriff in the William Penn Hotel.

Berardino was ordered sent to jail yesterday afternoon for contempt of court but was allowed to pass the night in the hotel in custody of the deputy while his attorney went to Kittanning and filed an appeal with Superior Court Judge J. Frank Graff.

Judge Graff granted a supercedas and this morning Berardino was released on bond. He was represented by Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, of Punxsutawney.

The Berardino fued with the wealthy Pittsburgh family of Cancelliere has had many court ramifications.

Berardino was ordered by Judge Kennedy in January, 1929, to pay his wife, Margaretta Cancelliere Berardino, $300 a month for separate support.

Berardino petitioned the court to reduce the amount. Judge Kennedy recently ruled that this petition would not be heard until Berardino had paid $4,500, now in arrears. When the judge learned yesterday Berardino had not paid up he immediately adjudged him to be in contempt of court.

NAVY PACT TO SAVE WORLD 2½ BILLIONS, HOOVER SAYS

PROSPERITY, PEACE SEEN IN TREATY

Money Will Be Devoted to Industry, Executive Holds, Citing U. S.-British Parity

WASHINGTON, April 12 — (AP.) — The abolition of competitive naval building and a world saving of approximately $2,500,000,000 are, in the opinion of President Hoover, the important accomplishments of the London conference.

With the termination of international rivalry in warship construction, the Chief Executive foresees "the burial of the fears and suspicions" which have been its "constant product." He predicts that the money saved will be devoted to reproductive enterprise and result in a greatly stimulated world prosperity.

U. S. TO SAVE BILLION

In estimating the financial saving, Mr. Hoover compared the sums to be spent for naval construction under the accord effected this week with what would have been expended on a basis of the fleet strength proposed at the unsuccessful Geneva conference of 1927. The saving to the United States alone, he estimated at approximately $1,000,000,000.

"The cost to the United States of replacements and new construction during the next six years will be (under various estimates) from $550,000,000 to $650,000,000, as compared to a sum of between $1,400,000,000 to $1,640,000,000 to attain parity on the Geneva basis," the President said. "To this latter would need be added the additional cost of maintenance and operating which would make the saving upon the present basis as compared to the Geneva up to $1,-000,000,000 in the next six years.

"The savings are not alone to the United States, but to Great Britain and Japan as well. The total savings to the world is perhaps $2,500,000,000 below the Geneva basis to which the world was steadily drifting. This sum devoted to reproductive enterprise will be a great stimulus to world prosperity."

The net result of the London agreement Mr. Hoover expects to be "a very considerable decrease" in the world's actual naval tonnage as it stands today.

WILL SCRAP NINE SHIPS

"It is difficult to estimate the precise reductions in war craft tonnage which has been brought about by this agreement because of the factor of normal replacement and additional tonnage authorized but not yet constructed," he said. "Nine battleships are to be scrapped of a total of about 226,000 tons, the replacement of 16 or 17 others to be deferred for six years. The various navies in the agreement are to reduce some 200,000 to 400,000 tons of other categories in the next few years as they become obsolete —but some categories of some of them must be increased in order to come up to the standards set."

One Vote Kills Bill Urging Dry Repeal

ALBANY, N. Y., April 12.—(INS.)—The 1930 session of the New York State Legislature ended at 1 o'clock this morning after a dramatic attempt to pass the Cuvillier bill memorializing Congress to call a National Constitution convention to delete the Eighteenth Amendment had failed. The bill had passed the Assembly 80 to 62, but in the Senate consideration was blocked by a single vote.

ON THURSDAY, to the intonation, "Ram, Ram, Ganga, MI," 500,000 Hindus dipped their bodies at sunrise into the sacred waters in the River Ganges. That is supposed to purify them "soul and body." About the soul we know nothing except that it exists and will live happily or otherwise ever afterwards. As to the body, dipping it into the River Ganges, on which corpses float, and a route which deadly diseases travel westward, is certainly not a purifying process.

DRAFTING ARMS AGREEMENT

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

LONDON, April 12.—Preliminary work of drafting the composite naval treaty agreed upon by the five powers attending the limitations conference was definitely under way today.

Most of the delegates have gone into the country for well earned rests over the week-end, returning for a plenary session of the conference Monday, to register various decisions and turn them over to the drafting committee.

Another full session has been set for next Thursday, at which time, it is hoped, the draft will be ready. This, however, is considered unlikely as there are many minor points yet to be cleared and this will take some days.

The British press generally agreed today that the Naval Conference has done some good, but deplored the fact that all five powers did not enter into the limitations pact.

100 Men Arrested In Hill Cleanup

Hill district police this morning began their task of "cleaning" the district of all suspicious characters and within four hours had placed approximately 100 prisoners in the stationhouse. Capt. John Schnurr and Lieut. William H. Lavery conducted the cleanup.

The police said they intend to arrest every suspicious character, known on the Hill. Men found loitering on the street and who were unable to explain their presence were arrested.

Armed Man Robs Gas Station in Oakmont

A masked thug early today held up the Oakmont-Verona Filling Station, Plum street and Oakmont avenue, Oakmont, and, after threatening the night attendant with a revolver, escaped with $50, according to Lieut. Edward Helwig and Patrolman John J. Couch, of Oakmont, who investigated the robbery.

The thief fled on foot over the Verona bridge, police were told.

Physician Granted Divorce for Cruelty

A divorce was granted Dr. C. G. Eschman, of 5150 Penn avenue, from Mrs. Edna Eschman, formerly of Masontown, on the grounds of cruelty and indignities, by a decree handed down by Judge John A. Evans in Common Pleas Court, after a contest by Mrs Eschman.

Door of Closet Traps Morrow And Guest

LONDON, April 12.—(AP.)—A clothes closet in the suite of Ambassador Morrow at the Ritz Hotel has undone the dignity of at least one attache to the British Foreign Office.

Several times the Ambassador has mistaken the door of the vestibule closet of his suite for the exit and has walked into the closet, but his personal staff has carefully avoided it.

H. W. Malkin, legal adviser to the Foreign Office, leaving Morrow's suite after a consultation on the naval treaty draft, mistook the closet door for the exit, and cheerfully went inside and started to close it behind him.

MRS. M'CORMICK TO RUN AS DRY

WASHINGTON, April 12 — (AP.)—Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republican nominee for senator from Illinois, will run for that office as a dry.

A question concerning the wet stand of her Democratic opponent, former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, elicited the response:

"I have always been dry, and there is no reason to change."

In her primary campaign, in which she defeated Senator Charles S. Deneen, Mrs. McCormick made the League Court her principal issue. She repeatedly attacked Deneen for his vote in the Senate for American adherence.

Fugitive in Fatal Gun Battle Hunted

DUBOIS, Pa., April 12.—Dozens of police and armed citizens are searching the wild lands between Dubois and Brockway today for Louie Denaria, 45, of Brockway, who disappeared from his home immediately after a gun battle, in which Alfred Pedac, 24, was killed, and Joseph Martini, 33, was wounded.

Citizens Protest Truck Overloading

Acting on complaints of residents of the Twenty-seventh Ward, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang yesterday ordered contractors engaged on the section of the Ohio River boulevard between Davis and Superior avenues to cease overloading trucks. Complaints reached the director that clay, shale and stone rolled from the trucks into the street and endangered traffic.

2 Seized in East End Raid Given 30 Days

Charged with keeping a disorderly house, Carman Vertulla, 32, and William Johnson, 50, were sentenced to 30 days in jail today by Magistrate Charles Papale in East End police court. They were arrested yesterday morning where police raided their establishment at 6219 Broad street and found a small quantity of moonshine.

BROWN ARRIVES WITH DAVIS

consideration in politics." He said his campaign was progressing well.

Brown, in discussing the campaign, said that he was going along on the Rooseveltian idea of being willing to put into effect any law that the people want. He said the campaign's outlook was most promising.

Numerous conferences with political leaders will be held today.

Commissioner J. G. Armstrong has indicated that the visit of Davis and Brown might result in the announcement today of a campaign chairman and an executive committee.

MAY VISIT WINTERS

Davis is expected to interrupt his Pittsburgh visit by a trip to Cleveland. The purpose was not announced but there was speculation as to whether Davis would call upon his close friend in fraternal and political activities, Controller Daniel Winters, who is convalescing in a Cleveland hospital and has made no public commitments in the state primary.

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, running for another term, ended a three-day visit in this vicinity with a broadcast last night over WJAS. Earlier in the day he met workers in Washington, Pa., and addressed Westinghouse employes in Wilmerding.

Pinchot's Washington reception was staged in the George Washington Hotel with Assemblyman D. Glenn Moore as master of ceremonies. The headquarters were thronged with supporters for four hours and predictions were freely made that Pinchot would carry the county as he did in 1922.

Washington is the home of State Treasurer Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, who is believed to be supporting Senator Joseph R. Grundy to succeed himself but has not indicated his choice of a gubenatorial candidate.

State Senator James J. Coyne and S. C. Jamison, of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, who are breaking ground for Grundy's local campaign, declared yesterday no date has been set for the candidate's visit to Pittsburgh but indicated he would be here early next week.

A report was current yesterday that Coyne and Pinchot had a tentative engagement to meet before the latter left Pittsburgh.

P. J. O'Malley, of the state auditor general's office, who is Congressman P. J. Sullivan's opponent for re-election, declared yesterday he would open headquarters early next week near his home in the Second ward.

ESTEP RETURNS

O'Malley is backed by Coyne, one of Mayor Kline's principal lieutenants, while Sullivan is said to have the support of Armstrong and Kline.

Congressman Harry A. Estep, who is in a contest for re-election with Stanley Carrington, of the Eighteenth Ward, returned yesterday from Washington, but made no comment on his campaign.

Friends of Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., son of Commissioner Armstrong, declared he is gaining strength daily in his campaign for state senator from the Thirty-eighth District.

Former Alderman P. F. Riley, of the Seventeenth Ward, who is opposing Armstrong, is said to have the support of Mayor Kline and to be making an active canvass.

ANTI-DRYS PICK LEADERS FOR FIGHT HERE

Frew, Shaughnessy Named County Committee Heads By State Campaign Chief

Randolph W. Childs, state campaign manager for the anti-dry ticket indorsed by the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, has announced the appointment of William Frew, of 1055 Devon road, as chairman of the Allegheny County committee, and F. E. Shaughnessy as chairman of the Western Pennsylvania committee.

The anti-dry ticket includes Francis Bohlen, for United States senator; Thomas W. Phillips, for governor, and Charles Dorrance, for lieutenant governor.

SCAN LAKE FOR ARTIST-FLIER

CHICAGO, April 12.—(INS.)—Searching planes set out from Curtis-Wright Airport here today to search Lake Michigan for some trace of Ralph Fisher Skelton, prominent Chicago portrait painter and sportsman pilot, who is believed to have been forced down in the lake while flying here from Detroit.

Skelton was last heard from Thursday afternoon when he landed his taper-winged biplane at Ann Arbor, Mich., took on gasoline and departed for Chicago. Several business and social appointments yesterday indicated that he intended to return here.

The artist's friends believe he attempted a test hop in overwater flying by crossing the lake, for Skelton was planning a transoceanic flight from New York to London for July. A heavy fog hung over Lake Michigan yesterday, and it is feared that he may have lost his bearings in attempting to fly through it by compass.

Skelton flew to Detroit Tuesday with two friends to select a Lockheed plane at the all-American aircraft show with which he hoped to make the trans-Atlantic flight.

PARKER FOES IN SENATE STRONG

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(INS.)—Opposition to the appointment of John J. Paker, of North Carolina, to the United States Supreme Court progressed to such a point today that it is considered certain a large block of votes will be cast against his confirmation in the Senate.

Vice President Curtis yesterday discussed with President Hoover the advisability of withdrawing the nomination, but Mr. Hoover let it be known that he would back Parker to the finish.

Organized labor started the fight on Parker because he upheld the so-called "Yellow Dog" injunction in the West Virginia coal fields, which prevented unionists from organization work, and to this opposition has been added that of various Negro organizations. This latter opposition has made northern Senators with large Negro populations politically nervous.

Stolen Automobile Damaged by Fire

An hour after an automobile had been stolen from in front of a Shadyside home, it was discovered burning in Jones avenue, near Twenty-eighth street, this morning. voted in favor of the consolidation, was made last night.

Immediately afterward Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, who has bitterly contested the deal with all the resources at the command of his millions, declared he will fight on through the courts and spend his last penny if necessary, to frustrate the merger.

The vote was announced after Common Pleas Judge C. S. Turnbaugh dissolved a temporary injunction obtained by the Eaton forces which restrained recording of the tabulation. The opposition today was prepared to appeal this decision. Eaton's forces also announced suits will be filed attacking the whole validity of the merger on the grounds that it was "railroaded through" and is detrimental to Sheet and Tube interests.

She cited the W. C. T. U.'s crusade in crushing cigaret butts and advocated in contrast an education of boys and girls against smoking.

Concerning religious intolerance and the fact that a Quaker can be denied citizenship because he refuses to bear arms, Mrs. Miller queried what would have happened to President Hoover's family if they had come to this country today.

She quoted Abraham Lincoln on Thomas Jefferson and declared that Lincoln would today be classed as an internationalist. Intolerance is always born of ignorance, she said.

CAR THIEVES CRASH IN FLIGHT

Police Shoot at Fugitives in Pursuit; Speeding Auto Hits Another—Man Hurt

A speeding automobile, occupied by several young men pursued by Mt. Lebanon police, early today rammed another machine in West Liberty avenue, near Grey street, causing injuries to one of its occupants. The youths escaped during the excitement, although police followed a short distance, firing several shots.

According to Acting Lieut. John Kauper and Motorcycle Patrolman John Swonger, of Mt. Lebanon, the machine, stolen two hours before in the township, was discovered by them and they chased it.

Several shots were fired during the chase.

At Grey street the machine smashed into the car of Boyd Webber, 35, of 323 Princeton avenue, Overbrook, which was driven by Bernard Donat, 39, of 42 Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon. Webber's car was thrown against a pole and Webber suffered severe lacerations and bruises. After being treated at Mercy Hospital he was taken home.

After stealing the car in Mt. Lebanon the youths drove to Greentree and stripped two machines, police say. They then went to Crafton and were sighted by police who gave chase.

The youths escaped to Mt. Lebanon where they were sighted and chased.

The car was recovered several hours later, abandoned, at 1509 Clinton street, South Side. It belonged to Thomas Stevenson, of Woodlawn Road, Mt. Lebanon, who had reported the car stolen.

Oakland Citizens Want Town Hall Downtown

A protest against building the proposed Town Hall in the Oakland district, signed by 11 prominent residents of that section, was in the hands of the County Commissioners today. They urged a downtown site as the most logical location for the building. Holding that the hall in Oakland would be detrimental to their interests, they gave, among others, the following reasons why the downtown site should be selected:

Better transportation facilities, the fact that Town Hall is a business enterprise, that when voters authorized expenditure of $6,000,000 for the building they were led to believe it would be located downtown, and that it would be nearer hotels.

Signers to the protest were Frank Wilbur Main, Clyde C. Taylor, A. B. Sheets, William M. McKee, C. P. Cruciger, A. H. Burchfield, E. W. Heyl, Harry J. Mooney, Charles C. Kohne, H. J. Parker and T. Thomas Kenyon.

Mrs. Kitay averred she was dragged and her clothes torn and body bruised and that she suffered humiliation before a crowd of neighbors in being taken by the patrol wagon to a cell. She alleged she was indicted by the grand jury April 11, 1929, after being held for court, and acquitted by a jury March last in Criminal Court, the costs being placed on Conrad, on a charge of obstructing process.

KIDNAPED MAN ESCAPES NEW MENACE

Bristow Train Halted as Mexicans Burn Bridges In Attempt to Get Oil Man

SAN ANGELO, Tex., April 12.—(AP.)—Again escaped from the clutches of bandits who destroyed two railway bridges and attempted to halt a train upon which he was leaving Mexico, J. E. Bristow, ransomed San Angelo oil and mining operator, today was expected to depart from Mazatlan, Mexico, for his home here.

The wife of the 60-year-old American whose experiences in the wild country of Western Mexico have excited the interest of the nation, yesterday received a telegram from her son, Gordon Obie Bristow, telling of the safe arrival of the rescue party at Mazatlan.

Gordon Bristow, a former star football player at the University of Oklahoma, succeeded Wednesday in obtaining release of his father for $1,500 ransom. The elder Bristow was held for a month by the robber chieftain, Cruz Delgado, near Ahuacatlan, Nayarit.

The second attack on the American mine owner and his party was made 35 miles south of Escuinapa, a mountain village about half way between Tepic, Nayarit, and Mazatlan.

When the train halted, upon reaching the first bridge, which had been burned, a number of armed natives were reported to have appeared along the right-of-way. They were routed by an escort of Mexican troops, which is accompanying the Americans out of the danger zone.

Mexico City dispatches said the train was held up for 12 hours while temporary bridges were built to replace the burned structure, and another nearby smaller bridge, which had been wrecked.

It was believed that the rescue party carried most of the $20,000 in gold which the younger Bristow took into Mexico in the expectation of using it for ransom.

State fire wardens today were investigating the cause of a brush fire which swept 400 acres of land in Fern Hollow, three miles from the Sewickley Heights Country Club last night. Calls for aid in extinguishing the flames were sent to several fire departments.

Considerable small game was killed in the fire, according to Warden Edward C. Costello. Dwellings and barns in the affected area were threatened with destruction at various times, he said.

Costello said the fire had been started at several places at the same time and was probably of incendiary origin. Flames were first discovered on the Shannon estate. Hundreds of motorists and residents watched workers under the direction of Wardens Jackson Croshoer and Costello extinguish the flames.

SKID BLAMED FOR WRECK KILLING 19

Bus Slid in Train's Path And Stalled, Witnesses Say; Three Unidentified

International News Service.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 12.—An official investigation was to get underway today as authorities sought to determine the exact cause of a crash between a fast Santa Fe mail train and a Pickwick motorbus yesterday which snuffed out the lives of 19 passengers and injured eight others.

Officials of the Pickwick-Greyhound line last night announced that all 27 passengers who were aboard the bus when it left Gallup, N. M., have been accounted for. Three bodies, those of an Indian and two small babies, are yet to be identified.

The train sideswiped the motor stage at a grade crossing at Isleta, N. M., 13 miles south of here. The impact demolished the bus and the debris burst into flames as the gasoline tank burst. Fifteen passengers were killed outright.

Identification of the victims is slow, due to the fact that the company kept no passenger list. The bodies were brought to two morgues here for positive identification.

Witnesses said the driver, F. C. Williams, who was killed outright, tried to stop for the crossing, but the bus slid onto the track and stalled. Engineer F. C. Davis said he applied the brakes when he saw the impending crash, and was unable to reduce the train's speed appreciably. Davis said the bus driver tried to swing his bus parallel to the train before the crash. Nearly all of the identified dead were from Western states.

SLEUTHS VIEW FAZIO'S AUTO

The barrel murder investigation was almost at a standstill today, with County Detective Chief George W. Murren confined to his home with illness. His aids were busy checking final details of James Moleno's alleged statement naming Phillip Fazio as the slayer.

Fazio's automobile was examined yesterday. The machine, a late model coupe, contains a specially-constructed compartment in the rear large enough to carry a barrel of beer. A barrel the same size as the one in which William J. Gregory's headless body was found in Penn Township two weeks ago was fitted into the compartment and detectives say there was ample room for it.

Fazio is said to have used the machine for hauling beer from various wildcat breweries located in several different sections of the county.

County Detective Frank Ritz, after making the experiment, declared it would have been an easy matter to have loaded a barrel into the car at the Lorigan street headquarters where the slaying is thought to have occurred, and driven to the bridge over Grines Run, where Gregory's body was dumped into the ravine.

An analysis of stains found on bricks in the Lorigan street place and on a wrench believed to have been used in the killing, will be completed the early part of next week. Detectives are of the opinion that the strains are blood.

Density of New Planet Key to Uranus 'Pull'

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., April 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Edwin B. Frost, director of Yerkes Observatory, said here that unless the recently discovered and unnamed planet had a density approximating that of platinum, it was doubtful whether it was the one forecast 25 years ago by Prof. Percival Lowell.

Search for the planet began, he said, after Prof. Lowell predicted some unknown body or bodies exerted a gravity influence that pulled Uranus from its calculated orbit.

The Yerkes Observatory was one of the first to photograph and study the unnamed planet. While the body had not yet been measured accurately because of interfering atmospheric conditions, Dr. Frost said it was agreed the planet appeared to be about the size of the earth. A body of earth size and density, he said, could not pull Uranus from its orbit to the extent of its present perturbation.

If the unnamed planet were responsible for the Uranus pull, he said, the body must have a heavy density, approaching that of platinum. Dr. Frost said it was possible this panet was merely one of a series of undiscovered bodies whose combined gravity-pull would account for the effect upon Uranus.

He said observations at Yerkes indicated the plane of the unnamed planet was tipped to about a 15-degree angle, differing from those of Uranus and Neptune, which are about the same as that of the earth. Until more perfect observation was possible, he said, positive statements were impossible.

Tablet Marks Hotel Site Where Lafayette Stayed

One hundred years ago pedestrians—and lots of them lived then—walked to Wood and Fifth and turned their toes in a building which was called the Mansion House. The famous wisecrack was "Set 'em up."

The tavern was famous for lots of things—including the entertainment of one Gen. Lafayette in 1825. He stayed overnight, and created the slogan, "Lafayette, here I am," which later was changed to "Lafayette, I am here."

Thursday night, it was learned yesterday, the officials of the First National Bank, which now occupies the site marked, marked the spot with a tablet of bronze. It commemorates in metal writing the historic spot, and faces on the Fifth avenue side.

There were no ceremonies, for the idea had been used before. In 1908, when the structure which preceded the present skyscraper was torn down, a plaque identical with the present one was discarded. That was 22 years ago, and the site has been unmarked since—until yesterday. The legend reads:

"This building marks the site of the hotel where Lafayette lodged from May 30 to June 1, 1825, on his tour as the nation's guest. The tavern was known as the Mansion House, and was removed about 1838."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Sara Lewis' Engagement Announced

ROMANCES are thriving beneath the spring moon, for already many youths and lasses have succumbed to Cupid these early April days. Troths are being plighted and weddings solemnized every day, I can say without exaggeration.

One engagement of interest in the social world is being announced this afternoon. The Bertrand West Lewises, of South Pacific avenue, are making known the betrothal of their daughter, Sara Westwood Lewis, to James Scott Miller, son of the Harry A. Millers, of Wheaton, Ill., at a tea in the Lewis home.

Assisting the hostess are Janet Clark, Christine Griggs, Marguerite McLenahan, Anna Negley, Elizabeth Phillips and Elizabeth Snyder.

ALTHOUGH this has been coming-hom month for ever so many folks, others are still lingering a the different resorts, reluctant to leave the scene of pleasant weeks. Aiken and Pinehurst, Hot Springs and White Sulphur Springs always attract many folks in early spring, and Pasadena, Cal., still has a Pittsburgh colony.

The W. S. Horners, of South Negley avenue, who have been wintering in Pasadena, entertained recently with a dinner in the Hotel Huntington. Among their guests were the D. M. Clemsons and the B. G. Follansbees, of Pittsburgh. Among others at the dinner were the Bennett Chapples, of Mid 'letown, O.

5,000 MORE GO 'YO-YOING'

There are nearly 5,000 more boys and girls "Yo-Yoing" today in Pittsburgh than yesterday. That's because the Sun-Telegraph, in conjunction with the Warner Brothers' neighborhood theaters, gave away this number of Yo-Yoes yesterday at the matinee performances of these theaters.

So, Pittsburgh is going Yo-Yoing in a hurry. This fascinating little spinning toy is already the fad with thousands here, and the craze is growing like wildfire. At the Enright Theater, East Liberty, there's another Yo-Yo matinee this afternoon.

The Sun-Telegraph and the Warner Brothers' Theaters will continue to spread the popularity of Yo-Yoes at another special matinee in the Enright Theater next Saturday afternoon, and Yo-Yo matinees at the neighborhood houses listed in the coupon Monday, April 21. Every boy or girl who attends these matinees as a patron of the theater will be given a Yo-Yo free. They must, however, present a Yo-Yo coupon clipped from the Sun-Telegraph. The coupon appears every day except Sunday.

Now, let's go Yo-Yo!

STYLIST DESIGNS CHARMING AND INTERESTING ENSEMBLE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 12.—Many dresses are at a loose end due to bows. We do not know when we have observed so many dresses flaunting large and important looking bows with long, loose trailing ends poised to the back of the skirt and lending interest to that part of the gown. Daytime frocks, too, have trimmings of bands and loops with loose fluttery ends, also generally trailing at the back of the model, but more in the region of the shoulder. Some of the ends of the bows placed on evening frocks are quite train-like in length especially the ends that trail from enormous pouff-bows, such as are used on so many taffeta frocks just now.

* * *

CHIFFON retains its place in the affections of the mode. In many cases it is successfully combined with other fabrics but the dominant charms of the material are never obscured whatever the material merger may be. Its cool freshness will again help to make the summer pleasant, and already the couturiers are offering most interesting frocks of both plain and figured chiffon. Of course, monotoned chiffon has been present all through the winter, here as well as at various resorts, and so it seems to be quite established as an all-year-round fabric, for which many of us will offer thanks.

* * *

THE ensemble is present in so many fascinating variations and combinations, and so we think it is quite in order to send you sketches and a description of a very new creation that acurately reflects the present and future trend of the mode. The ensemble which is from Cheruit offers much of interest and charm. The frock is of orange colored chiffon, and from one side of the diagonal decolletage, a narrow shoulder strap of gold lame runs down, in back, to the waistline to meet a huge bustle like bow of crisp, dark brown taffeta with long ends. A circular flounce on the lower half of the skirt deepens in back to form a train.

* * *

OVER the Cheruit gown just described is worn a lovely wrap, also sketched. It is a brown taffeta coat with a deep collar, draped in capucine manner, of gold lame. The coat, quite short in front, curves down sharply in back. It will be noticed that the wrap allies itself with the frock by its use of the two materials used to trim the gown. This is a recent manifestation of the ensemble, and one that will gain in importance.

Revengeful Society Girl Seeks Ardeth's Help

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ardeth Carroll is being wooed by Neil Burke, who rooms with her Aunt Stella. Almost every night when she returns home from work she finds him waiting in the hall for her, and he often causes her to be late for dinner. Aunt Stella gets angered and scolds Ardeth for holding back the meals. Ardeth feels depressed. Ardeth goes for a machine ride with Neil. Passing through a park Ardeth gazes at Kent Gleason, a college football player, whom she knows to see. Neil shows signs of jealousy. Later, when Neil kisses her, Ardeth realizes that she does not love him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

ARDETH hated Monday mornings—hated them with the hopeless rebellion which ugliness and discord could always rouse in her.

After the comparative leisure of Sunday Mondays were feverish and tense.

The shrilling voice of the alarm clock stabbing through sleep. Aunt Stel's strident tones: "How many times have I got to tell you to get up? If you'd get in at a decent hour at night you wouldn't be so dog-tired next day!"

Gray reality closing in on her bright dreams as Ardeth lurched out of bed and groped sleepy eyed for the under things she had tossed at a chair the night before.

The rush for the bathroom. Grimy soap dissolving in a scummy pool—Ugh! Someone had left the cap off the tube of toothpaste again and it had hardened to something akin to cement.

Discord. There was always discord on Monday morning.

"Bet! You've been wearing my stockings again!"

"Well, for Gosh sakes, don't have a fit about it! I didn't have a clean pair yesterday and I couldn't go barefoot, could I?"

"But it's the second time! And they were my new shoes!"

"Oh, don't be so stingy! When Mamma lets you live here with us so cheap the least you could do is loosen up now and then—"

"You girls, stop your fightin' an' get out here to your breakfast. Think I can wait all day—"

Out into the cluttered kitchen where grey fog pressed against the grimy window panes. Torn oil cloth on the table. Bacon, rapidly congealing to grease on a cold plate. The air, blue with the acrid smell of burnt toast and the butter melted to a salty paste to make it spread.

The Boss
Everything Quiet When Tom Appears

Paul had forgotten where he had slung his school books last Friday afternoon. His dark looks at Fan told that he suspected her of the worst.

Fan—whining to wear her best shoes. "Aw, gee—why can't I? Huh, Mom? Mabel Sneider wears her's all the time. An' we're goin' in Miss Bates' room for music today. Aw, gee—these ol' scuffed thing—"

She kicked viciously at the offending shoes. Her aim was unfortunate and landed on Paul who wheeled with a roar.

Aunt Stel put down the threatened riot by the simple expedient of raising her voice higher than their own.

"Shut up, you kids, or I'll give you somethin' to bellow for! here comes Tom! Want he should hear you scrappin'? He'll knock your heads off."

The czar took his place at the table amid sullen silence. Conversation became laconic, punctuated by dark looks.

"More coffee, Mom." "Butter!" "Goin' t' keep the sugar all day? Give somebody else a chance, can'tcher?"

Harsh .... Ungracious .... Ardeth felt her heart shrink within her.

Relief
Ardeth Happier While At the Store

Tom was gone; shoving back his chair with a grunt. His mother picked up the soiled napkin which dropped from his lap. She hustled the others, cracking the verbal whip over them even as Simon Legree had lashed the slaves. With the last one out of the house she would be able to shove back the soiled dishes, plant her fat elbows on the table and lose herself in the daily beauty hints of the newspaper.

When Ardeth and Bet emerged from the house, early fog still flooded the street. They squeezed themselves into the packed street car. An anxious, time-conscious crowd, smelling of damp overcoats and cold lunches.

The depression of the Harrison flat followed Ardeth as far as the transfer point, where Bet left her. Bet worked in an insurance office further downtown.

Once she was alone a weight slid from her mind. The scene of some brave, bright adventure just ahead," seized her again. She was coming into her own world once more.

Ardeth liked the store where she worked. Its brisk brightness was stimulating after the drab untidiness of the Fell street flat. She liked the color—the motion—the sure decisive pattern of it. Somehow decent it was; putting order in one's life . . .

Most of all she liked the Oriental art department where she worked. It was a snug world of beauty closing comfortably about her. The cloisonne vases—the Bengalese brasses—the little bronze Buddas and Chinese embroideries—these lovely exotic things helped her dream. They were removed from the gray reality of life. They were a fitting setting for dreams of Ken Gleason.

Jeannette Calls
Ardeth Excited When She Appears

Ever since she had wakened this morning, Ardeth had been fighting off the thought of him. The memory of yesterday was a warming glow deep in her heart. In the gray discord of the Harrison home, she had withheld her thoughts determinedly. Incongruous to think of him there . . . But here, in this quiet colorful corner—here with the gleam of silks, the burnished brasses, the ascending blue spirals of incense, she could dream.

As yet, her feelings for Ken Gleason were too vague to be called love. This was only the first gentle flush in the sky before sunrise. A time when she was happy merely remembering little things—the way the morning sun had glanced on his hair until it shone like a metal helmet. . . . Remembering the strange long glance he had given her. Eyes of blue . . . fighting blue . . . Had she read that somewhere?

In the middle of the afternoon she was jolted from her dreamy calm. Her heart gave a bound. Coming down the aisle was Jeannette Parker—Jeannette, who had been in the same group with Ken yesterday!

Ardeth was busy with another customer, but Jeannette waved at her. "I'll wait—want to talk to you." She seated herself on a teakwood tabourette and drew a cigaret case from her handbag.

Jealousy
Feels Revengeful Against Younger Sister

She was a dark, almost sullen looking girl. Quite conscious she was, that she was a member of the wealthy California Parkers. Conscious, as well, of the correctness of her smart tweed ensemble—of the richness of her furs.

Jeannette posed at being "different." In this role it had pleased her fancy to strike up a casual friendship with Ardeth Carroll, a friendship patronizing on Jeannette's part; frankly admiring on the part of the other girl.

It was this last quality which stimulated the affair, for admiration was very sweet to Jeannette. Under her carefully maintained cool poise, lurked a very demon of jealousy. Jealousy of her younger sister, Cecile, who was the beauty of the family and the favorite of her parents.

Jeannette hid her true feelings well. Watching her smoking now, with, that easy air of half-scornful amusement no one would have guessed she was raw with wounded pride. Cecile had shone at a dance last night, totally eclipsing her older sister and Jeannette was out for revenge. Revenge, which Ardeth Carroll, all unknowing, was to help her get.

PROF. CRANDALL who gave us a turtle is not convinced that he acted wisely. The professor believes now that we did not have the right attitude toward the turtle that we should have. The turtle's welfare is his heart. Prof. Crandall is constantly thinking of treating the turtle.

Probably he is right. We admit there is no emotional stir within us when the turtle is mentioned. But we contend that to stir we believe. Give us a chance. Give us six months to become turtle-conscious and we'll do our best. After all the professor can't expect us to become an ardent turtle admirer over night. Mingo Junction, O., wasn't built in a day, you know.

ZANE GREY COWBOYS PLAY SANTA CLAUS IN STANLEY

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Cooper's Indians are all dead but Zane Grey's cowboys have inherited their chivalry and Christian virtues. Which is proved by "The Light of Western Stars," a Zane Grey picture which began to talk at the Stanley Theater yesterday.

Richard Arlen is the most chivalrous and virtuous of all the cowboys though we see him on a wild spree as the picture opens. Then he kisses Mary Brian against her will, but gets sober and heroic as soon as he hears she is the sister of his best friend who has been shot by an unknown bad man.

THAT'S THE DIRTY DOG!

We know who did the murder as soon as the dirty dog shoots open a can of tomatoes with the same size bullet. Then it's only a question of time till Richard Arlen gets him after a knock-down-and-drag-out fight.

A stampede of horses, coyotes howling to the moon, and a lasting gun fight to defend Mary Brian's home against seizure these are among the thrilling incidents that enter into the story. Richard Arlen has permanently reformed by this time and is almost as active in playing Santa Claus as Harry Green.

Harry Green as a tin peddler is by far the best thing in the picture. The scene where they sell his pants is uproarious comedy.

AMUSING TIN TYPES

Charlie Hill is the guest master of ceremonies and the revue is called "Tin Types" which means mountainous bustles and a suds-blowing scene in a prehistoric bar room. But Llora Hill by her fine vocalization and comedy byplay won warm applause, while the Lassiter Brothers with very ludicrous acrobatics were another bright spot in the bill.

Three skating marvels, Bernie Armstrong's organ and singing lesson, David Broudy with his orchestra and a dozen Dorothea Berke Girls completed the entertainment, which was pleasant if not thrilling.

FURIOUS PAPA

THIS story professes to be true but, of course, where there's smoke there's flame.

It concerns Carl Laemmle, Jr., Lewis Milestone and "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Peace the studio received simply unbearable from the New York office demanding a print of this war film. Director Milestone however hadn't decided in some instances just which of takes of the scene he would use. Junior endeavored to persuade Milly to hurry. Milly took his time.

In desperation, and as his argument supreme Junior is reported as turning to Milestone:

"You better make up your mind or my papa will be furious at you!"

LINGUISTIC TOUCH

SCREENALITIES: Primo Carnera, the Italian hulk, has come and gone, having knocked out a terrified Negro opponent who was almost too scared to fall . . . Linguistic touch: W. S. Van Dyke, director of "Trader Horn," discloses that a "knockout" in Swahili is "kala." Likewise "Alfonzo" is something else again, as a cop. . . . She was a pleasant young thing who didn't like Buddy Rogers because so many girls chased after him . . . good for Buddy, she's the exception to the rule . . . Kay Francis is the modest one crediting her celluloid success to the fact that she got some swell parts . . . Lilyan Tashman was too busy to play . . . Irvin Willat, Billie Dove's husband, from whom she is separated, is in England and may direct a talky there . . . Years ago Bill Beaudine megaphoned an unknown lad, Ben Alexander, in a film yclept "Boy o Mine." First National may remake this un as a talky. Being almost a six-footer now, Ben won't be the title role . . . Kinda tough sledding today.

STERN DRAMA STALKS UNDERSEA IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Men Without Women," dramatic and brawling drama of submarines and the men who man them, opened yesterday on the Aldine talk screen. It packs a thrill wallop.

The picture visions men shorn of the shams of everyday life. They are men face to face with death. They are trapped in a submarine that has been disabled at the sea's bottom.

One gets hysterical shouts about the vengeance of the Lord and tries to blow the place up with an explosive. Only the commander intervenes. He shoots the fanatic dead. Then he goes all to pieces himself. He is such a young lad, this commander.

Another writes a letter to his mother and engages in a flat fight with a fellow sailor who makes fun of his sentiment. Then there is one who spends his time carving a little wooden boat and floating it pathetically on water that comes seeping in from the sea without. Others content themselves with just staring, still others find time for the wisecracks. And many of them recall the women they have known—wives, mothers, sweethearts or, in some cases, just the girls in every port.

And outstanding is the wireless operator. Consistently he strives to get in touch with the world above the sea. But he never loses that roughneck sense of humor of his. All of the programs are lousy anyway, is his complaint as he deserts his apparatus.

But rescue comes for some of the men. And with it the film's biggest thrill. Living men go zooming as torpedos from the bottom of the sea to its top.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: How do you think a system of four red traffic lights at busy intersections, halting all traffic and permitting pedestrians to cross streets while the lights are on, will work out?

Carl Long

CARL LONG, Carrick: I think that the best system to put into vogue would be a dual system, with the new lights along with the present system. Then we would be able to see how the matter would work out.

D. A. Cuthbert

DONALD A. CUTHBERT, Wilkinsburg: It's a good idea. At least it should be given a try-out. It is an experiment and has good possibilities. Maybe a lot of pedestrian accidents could be stopped.

Elmer Scholze

ELMER SCHOLZE, New Kensington: The time element must be taken into consideration. Would time be saved? Such lights might be efficient at some crossings and lose a lot of valuable time for traffic at other corners. What should be used is a system that speeds traffic up as much as possible.

Dr. Miller

DR. NATHAN MILLER, professor, Carnegie Tech: I'm not much in favor of any such system. The pedestrians have few rights now, and it seems to me that they should have fewer. That's exactly how I feel about it, but perhaps I'm a bit cynical in this respect.

L. McConaghey

LOUIS B. M'CONAHEY, Squirrel Hill: The lights, in my opinion, would hold up traffic at certain intersections, but would be advantageous at certain points, particularly along Liberty avenue. I don't think they'd work out all over the city.

Evan Jones

EVAN JONES, student, East End: The system might work out on busy corners. I'm sure it would save a lot of time and would prevent a lot of accidents. But then, in some cases, delays would result and the same situation we have now would exist.

Grayish

Richard Arlen has gone Gray on the Stanley screen. That is, he is featured in "The Light of the Western Stars," a Zane Gray story.

ROD LA ROCQUE GOES HOME-WRECKING IN THE PENN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Eddie Leonard, oldtime minstrel man, is making an appearance on the Penn stage. And on the screen is a talkie, titled "The Locked Door." Incidentally, the hinges on this door are a bit rusty. What we mean is that the picture goes in for a lot of old melodramatics. In fact, some of its "situations" are as ancient as any of Mr. Leonard's minstrelsy.

But don't construe this as a reflection on Mr. Leonard. It is good to see him and his blackened-up face again. It is good to hear some of his old songs once more.

BEHIND THAT DOOR

Getting back, or rather behind "The Locked Door," we discover it is a picture whose big punch and title come when a husband shoots a man and then makes his getaway, locking the door after him. Behind that door, unknown to him, is his wife. She was a witness to the shooting. And she with all the feminine heroics at her command, stands ready to take the blame in an effort to shield her husband.

Rod La Rocque is prominent in the film as a young and wealthy waster, who goes about having affairs with this lady and that. And always he is the calm and gallant one. Even when a jealous husband gets in pursuit, this Don Juan doesn't become ruffled. When wrecking homes, he nonchalant, is his formula.

THE DUMBELL, ZASU!

Barbara Stanwyck, talented and charming, is there as the heroine, caught in the turmoil of a complicated plot. William Boyd is there as a husband who goes out dealing vengence on behalf of a friend, little realizing how his own wife will be involved in it all. And Zasu Pitts is there, the brightest bit in the picture, as a dumbell telephone operator she is a laugh every time she opens her mouth, and most of the time when she doesn't.

The stage show is titled "Southern Melodies." Aside from Mr. Leonard, it features Pat Henning, clown boy supreme, four Negro dancers, who display some new steps, and Bobby Gillette, who sings, works the banjo and operates as guest M. C.

LEGACY

SOME night when I am certain that the pain
Of losing you is strangely dead at last,
I will go out in search of love again
Despite the fevered warnings of my past;
It is not good for lads to walk alone
When moons spill silver on a ghostly street,
There is a challenge in the south wind's moan—
And I must trample down an old defeat.

Yes, I will find a maid as fair as you,
Blissfully keen to learn of Cupid's lore,
Oh, I am eager for that rendezvous—
I will be so much wiser than before;

And when she finds that love's a sorry game,
She will have no one else but you to blame!

CONTROVERSY

THE quarrel here concerning the original collar man ends with this reportorial fact. Joseph C. Leyendecker made the first illustration for the collar firm which has been getting too much free advertising in this corner, and his model was Charles Allwood Beach, who has a certificate from the collar company to prove it.

"O. K."

And the controversy over "O. K." should cease with this. The first known use of O. K. appears in the court records of Sumner Co., Tenn., October 6, 1790. On that date, according to George W. Stimson's book of knowledge, Andrew Jackson "proved a bill of sale which was O. K." It is thought what appeared to be O. K. in the record was a poorly penned O. R., which was the abbreviation used for Ordered Recorded.

MERCILESS TRUTH

THE committee in charge of Heywood Broun's monster benefit show at the Imperial at midnight tonight for the unemployed were gagging about this and that when a newspaperman said:

"Do you know that the Old Man's Home hasn't one columnist in it? I wonder why."

"Because," was the retort natural, "they don't live that long."

REASON ENOUGH

One of the Broadway girl-fiends amazed some of us last night when he refused to be introduced to a pretty chorus girl. He later explained:

"I haven't met or gone out with a girl for months and I took an oath I wouldn't bother with any of them until after the first of November."

"What's your reason?" he was asked.

"Because they all have their fur coats bought by then."

BALANCE

I ever a lad was a wastrel
That self-same lad is I;
I've spent my time in taverns
Since first my throat went dry.
My gold on any trifles
I had no need to buy.
If ever a lad was a failure
That luckless lad is I;
Yet I have had such rapture
As pass the victors by;
And times far out of number
I've reached and touched the sky.

BY WAY OF REPORT

A READER wonders if he can believe all he reads in the newspapers.

"I was deceived into believing," he writes, "that Fannie Hurst and her husband dwell on the 'Fannie Hurst plan,' meaning that they occupy separate apartments and only breakfast with each other now and then. But I have seen them together frequently recently, so how come?"

That gag was started many seasons ago by a magazine editor who had confidence in the then unknown Miss Hurst. He decided to make her internationally famous with her first article and gave out that fable to the press, which fell for it harder than a Carnera opponent. As a matter of fact, Jacques Danielson and Miss Hurst are devoted to each other and are better described as "inseparable."

INCIDENTALLY

SPEAKING of Fannie Hurst and her devoted husband recalls the time they promoted tickets for the Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray murder trial in Queens County. That trial attracted tremendous crowds and many a newspaper representative was crowded out of his chair by crashers who fought and clawed to get into the courtroom. Influential citizens pulled strings to get an admission ducat, and failed, but Miss Hurst and her husband, who were supposed to "see each other only now and then," walked out of the place in a huff when they discovered that their respective seats were in different parts of the room.

PUN MY SOUL!

And Izzy Elinson can make up a sentence containing the word "Ceremonies" like this: "Are you his brother?"

"No ceremonies friend."

THE ART OF LOVE

ACCORDING to Philip R. Davis, A man must never let a woman be sure of his fidelity but by a like token must he never let her be sure of his infidelity . . . Let no man seek to win a woman by gift for there are those who can outpurchase him . . . Never disparage another man's powers, because you awaken her curiosity as to your reasons, which may be based on the feeling of inferiority. Rather praise men you fear . . . A woman's indifference is her stock in trade. If you let it spur you on you play into her hands.

MR. ZIEGFELD COMPLAINS

"I read your column with interest," westernuniens F. Ziegfeld from Palm Beach, "and you certainly dig up advance news. I am only going to Hollywood to protect my interests on the 'Whoopee' film. After 'Whoopee' I have no more interests with Goldwyn. I will have my own company, as you pointed out. It will be a billion dollar company. But you must be wrong about B. C. taking Evelyn Laye away from me. She doesn't even dream of appearing for any other management. You must have got that gossip on Broadway and he probably backed it up. All in face of fact I let him have Donahue. That's what's the matter with the theater. Bums in it."

BEBE DANIELS, LYON AND DUNCAN GIRLS IN NEW FILMS

Two new talk films open here today. These are "Alias French Gertie," the Sheridan Square booking, and "It's a Great Life," the Harris feature. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon are featured in "Alias French Gertie," which is a crook drama. The Duncan Sisters head the cast of "It's a Great Life," which is heralded as a screen musical comedy.

"The Benson Murder Case," starring William Powell, opens its second week in the Warner today.

Hugh Banks returns to the Pitt next week for the leading role in "Charlie's Aunt," the latest George Sharp presentation.

"Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neill's nine-act drama, will begin its final week in the Nixon Monday night.

Monday morning, in the Alvin, the seat sale will open for the return engagement, Easter week only, of "Journey's End," R. C. Sherriff's war play. This time it will be presented by the Eastern company, in which Richard Bird and Henry Stephenson are prominent. Matinees will be Wednesday and Saturday.

Ben Pollack Here For One More Week

Ben Pollack and his orchestra will begin their third and final week Monday in the Nixon Restaurant. Following Pollack will be Hal Kemp and his collegiate Hotel Manger Orchestra, who will come to the Nixon Restaurant under the management of the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau.

ENRIGHT PICTURE FLAT WITH CHANEY DUMB; STAGE PEPPY

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

With a few changes, "The Phantom of the Opera" showing in the Enright is the same picture in which Lon Cheney appeared some years ago. A good dose of trick photography, with its effective distortion of perspectives, which so well brings out the outstanding angles in many movie shots, is a big help.

The much-ballyhooed voice and sound addition falls flat without Chaney's speech. It is distractingly incongruous to have the whole cast speak except the lead, whose remarks appear in black and white. It might be argued that mystery is heightened by silence, if Chaney spoke not at all.

RIO BROTHERS WIN

The Rio Brothers ran away with the house in an unusually clever specialty dance. The Friday matinee crowd was not content with two encores from the Rios. Their applause couldn't be stopped by orchestra or ushers until Jay Mills explained, nearly five minutes after they exited, that a crowded bill would not permit further encores.

Earl Levere, smart cracker, pleased everyone with a succession of jokes, most of Scotch odor. His time moved faster than it might—the audience seemed to like him.

EFFECT OF HEAT

The chorus was attractive as ever but, like the rest of the stage show, probably felt the heat wave beating down on them. The spirit, the enthusiasm that makes stage shows entertaining was not shown in liberal doses at the opening performance.

Mills, announcing his departure for the Earle Theater, Philadelphia, in two weeks, sang without a meghaphone something about "Should I"—words by Mills. The back of the house could hear it better, enjoy it more, with the ol' meghaphone.

CHICKIE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Chickie Depressed After Seeing Moving Picture

CHAPTER LVIII.

SHE seldom dropped in on Mary these days. She was afraid of her questions.

One night they bumped into each other as Mary was leaving her mother's. Mary said angrily, giving little Edward's go-cart a vigorous push: "Walk a ways with me, Chickie." Then abruptly: "What's this I hear about you?"

Trifles like that filled her with alarm—a random look, a word. Now she was cold; shocked into silence.

"Oh, it's true, is it? Pardon me for butting in."

Breathless, Chickie snapped: "Have sense! What in the world are you talking about?"

Mary flared about, stopping short: "You, Chickie Bryce! Nobody else! Nice thing that your friend, Janina Knowles, can tell it to me. After all these years!"

Belief like the soft evening breeze touched the hot burn in her mind. She tucked her arm in Mary's: "Let's have it, old dear. I don't know what you are ranting about."

"Oh, no! But I didn't look for a slap in the face like this, Chickie. That one's going to stand up with you! Well—it's your own business, but I'm here to say it's pretty raw. I may be a dub and all that, but I guess I could scrape the wherewithal to buy a decent gown. And if I'm not thin enough to walk before you I could starve between now and June. Well—laugh? Oh—awfully funny, isn't it? But don't think I'll get over it in a hurry, either. Perhaps that's why you've given me the out for the last few months. Well, you don't get away with it, that's all!"

She was almost running now—her dark face crimson. Chickie burst out laughing. When she tried to speak, she laughed again, half with relief, half with hysteria. Finally, she said: "Sweet Mary. Lovely Mary!"

Mary bit her lips together.

Denies Janina's Story

Chickie said amiably: "I do not know what Janina can have told you, but it's not true."

"Well, that will be about enough from you, Mrs. James Edward McPike! Step off your perch. If Janina gave you an ear full, she had her fun out of it. She made it all up."

Mary glanced at her, unbelieving. At length she said: "You love this Barry Dunne, don't you, Chickie?" You're wild about him? You've just about given up everything for him?"

Mary went on ruthlessly: "And I suppose you've let yourself care so much that if anything should come between you now you'd be heartbroken?"

Chickie had a sudden wild impulse to say: "Yes—that's true, Mary. Nothing dare come between us now. What do you think of that?"

She fancied Mary's face getting dead and white; Mary's mouth dropping. Would Mary turn from her? Would Mary think it so monstrous? She wanted to know.

This thought often seized her. If she were to tell, would she be left without a friend in the world? And all these that loved her—Jennie, Jonathan, Jimmy—even Mary would freeze her from their hearts?

She asked Mary almost this very thing the next evening. Barry happened to be working. So she and Mary went to a movie. It was Chickie's only chance to see her favorite stars, because he hated movies and always fell asleep when she did prevail on him to go.

The play had as its central character a girl deserted by her lover. Watching a thing like this brought a faintness over her; thinking of it afterward worked her to a frenzy.

Chickie Cries

She sat forward, taut, feverish. When the girl pleads with the man, clinging to him and he puts her coldly away, Chickie began to cry. Mary leaned toward her: "Only a picture, ole thing—save the weeps!"

She laughed. But she wished piercingly that she was alone; that Mary had not seen.

When they pushed out with the crowd into the garish lights of the vestibule, the jostling, the noisy talk and laughter of the people about her sounded stupid and boisterous. She took Mary's arm. "Let's hurry."

Mary tittered: "Heavens, Chickie, you're sentimental!"

"Well, I suppose so. It gets my goat in these pictures that the man is always the one who grows tired."

Mary shrugged. "Oh, pictures or life. Chickie, men are footloose, you know."

"But why should a man cease to care any more than a girl?"

Mary considered this a long time. "Well, I believe that women also get tired, but they are afraid to let go for fear they'll go down and down. They look on the man as a kind of lifesaver, a protection. The man knows he has nothing to lose by getting tired; but the woman has, or she thinks she has. It's the same thing."

"You're talking old-fashioned, Mary. In this day and age a girl doesn't think anything of the kind. She knows it's no worse for her to do things than it is for a man."

Mary sniffed. "Oh, kid yourself! We're the same dumb beasts today that we always were. And there won't be any escape till they turn us out by a new pattern. That doesn't seem very near. If there's any paying to be done, it's still little Eve that does it. Married or single, the woman's the goat!"

Mary Expresses Views

"Well—but when you come right down to it, Mary, what's so wrong about it that she should have to pay? I mean, what's wrong about a love like that in the play? Isn't it silly to call one emotion holy just because a few words are said over it; and the same emotion a crime because these words aren't said?"

She felt Mary's arm tremble; fear raced through her. What was the matter with her? Crazy—Mary would guess.

Mary said: "It's a great deal more than just the saying of a few words, Chickie. It's the whole intention to accept responsibility. And even if you say that kind of love isn't wrong—well, it's stupid. Why should a girl take a chance when the odds are all against her? If she has any brain at all, she doesn't need to."

Chickie cried out impatiently: "Mary, don't be so smug! As though love stops to figure like that. You know it doesn't. But, anyway, the odds don't seem to be against the girls today. They get away with them pretty cleverly. And if they wish to marry, they do! The men don't seem to mind."

"Bunk, Chickie. We don't hear all of the cases. It's my opinion that man hasn't changed much in the last century. Let him have the gains without the pains and you won't find him two-timing to Lohengrin!"

Chickie felt that a flame whipped up and hit her in the face. But she laughed: "Not much of a recommendation for the dear men, and you such a beloved wife, Mary!"

Chickie Depressed

She hurried down the street. Dizziness whirled about her. Rounding the corner she leaned against a garden rail, wiped her face. It seemed to her that her ideas were falling about her like blocks that a child has unsteadily builded into a tower.

She said to herself: "Mary doesn't know! What does she know?"

But she went into the kitchen and sat on a box. When Wildie, yawning and slow, crouched at her feet she pulled him up, his head on her shoulder. She whispered, "Hush, Wildie." When he licked her face he seemed to know the tears, or she fancied that he did because of the eager devotion in his eyes. It made her cry.

All the next day she was depressed. She identified herself with the girl in the play. She imagined Barry the hero, looking at her coldly, putting her off when she clung to him. The sense of desertion laid hold of her.

By 5 o'clock she was excited . . . a still, deadly excitement. It drove her; made her half wild. When he met her in the alley she turned this on him. And in a moment the thing was beyond her control

"NOTHING UP HIS SLEEVE"

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"NOTHING up his sleeve" indeed, for the champion sleight-of-hand artist of all times and places is as naked as a young birch tree in the spring. He has no sleeves, or other impediments, no collar, no tie, and his entire skin-space is infant-size, impossible to conceal a water-fall of red roses upon!

Nevertheless he manages. He produces wonders from nowhere. He colors the entire world any tone he pleases, with a flourish of his fat hand. Before the eyes of his admiring villagers he can cause Winter to turn to Spring; a bed of violets to replace a snowbank in the time that it takes to look into the eyes of your sugar and say "Je t'aime!" He can turn a fire-escape under the moon into a rustic landscape for a fleeting moment of magic. He can make a country lane an avenue in the gardens of Paradise, the flowers to sing, the "stones to speak," the clouds to be peopled with the black-eyed houri of fairy-tales.

He can make a tiny man into a big one for some doting maid. He can turn mousey hair to gold, and take pounds off the plump damoselle for some honest young man. Sometimes, and isn't it lovely, the maid and the honest young man never see one another again with the eyes of the rest of the world!

And 'round him while he works his wonders in the villages of the world, bright eyes watch and grow brighter. Red lips smile and grow more red. "Isn't he a wonder! How does he do it?"

Nothing up his sleeve indeed. No sleeve. No vest. Candid eyed if ever any one was. He must be the wizard of wizards, the mightiest magician of all magicians.

And yet—there is always someone to drift by, while love is working his most marvelous magic, to drift by and say, aloud, "faker!"

Mrs. Tice Tells More of Farmhouse Burglary

"HAS she fainted?" my mother-in-law demanded when Mrs. Ticer slumped against me with the cry that her boy, Jerry, was to blame for the burglary at the farmhouse. "If she has, I'll help you get her to the couch. You can't hold her like that. She's too heavy. You'll go down yourself."

"I'm — not—fainting—" she gasped as she struggled to hold herself erect. "I never fainted in my life, although I guess I came pretty near to it just now. Let me go, Mrs. Graham. I'll just sit down by the door a minute and I'll be all right, or as all right as I ever can be after this. Oh-h!"

She sank into a chair, her voice trailing pitifully. I leaned toward her with a gesture of protest.

"I've got to tell you," she said. "But I'm sure of one thing. Jerry never knew what the man was up to, or he'd never have told him what he must have. But that hain't much of any excuse for him, for I told him plenty. If he'd minded me—but he didn't, and see what happened!"

"Why don't you begin with the man's first acquaintance with Jerry," I suggested after a pause which threatened to become a silence, "and tell us everything that annoyed you."

Mrs. Ticer heaved a huge sigh of relief.

"I suppose that would be the best way," she said. "Well! you see it was like this. The man was foxy at first, didn't ask any questions about the neighborhood, just made up to Jerry and Sam as if all the wisdom in the world was bound up in them, and he thought he could rub off a little if he kept close to them. Then after he'd got 'em so they was eating out of his hand, he began to talk about the old houses around here, said he was studying architecture on the side—hoped to be one some day and that he was interested in the 'interiors of different periods'—does that make any sense to you?"

"I think I know what he meant," I said.

"I guess he was interested in interiors all right," she commented, "especially the one of your folks' house. But the way he told it to Sam and Jerry, he could tell by looking at a house, just how the rooms was laid out inside. You know how Sam likes a bet."

I nodded, for everybody acquainted with good-natured Sam Ticer knows that he would bet on the number of flies passing a certain point in a certain time if he could find no other subject for a wager.

"Well! he bet with Sam that he could tell how the most of every house was laid out on the inside; Sam was to get a quarter for every room he guessed wrong. It was a queer thing, though, Sam didn't get many quarters, maybe one or two for each house. But that was enough for Sam. He'd spend hours going around with the fellow to look at houses that Sam knew the inside of like his own, then the fellow would sit down and draw the interior for him. It was creepy like to see how well he could do it.

"Then one night last week we was all sitting around the fire after supper, and the fellow says: 'There's one house near here that intrigues me,' he says. 'If I could draw the interior of that house without a mistake it would be my greatest triumph, because I know it must have been altered much since it was built. I mean the big farmhouse next to you. You know it pretty well, don't you?' "

My pulses jumped when Mrs. Ticer stopped. I felt as if I were drawing close to the actual presence of the mysterious burglar.

Household Hints

Bathing caps and other rubber goods can be kept fresh and new by giving them a "bath" in talcum powder, when dry, after use.

When making a pudding for boiling, place a piece of floured paper over the pastry before tying on the cloth. The cloth will come away quite clean and the paper is easily peeled off, whether the pudding is cooked in a basin or in a cloth.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Why Is a Gigolo?

WHEN a popular New York actress admits that she had to hire a young man to escort her about to theaters and night clubs, "in order to avoid being mauled in taxicabs," it throws a brand-new light on the gigolo.

* * *

Up to now, there has always seemed to be a reason for everything — even red hats, white spats and confirmed bachelors—except a GIGOLO!

But, after all, he may be a blessing in disguise. His real mission may be not to make love to neglected women and save them from boredom, but to protect attractive women from the boredom of being made love to.

* * *

To a Tired Business Woman it might be real economy to employ a paid escort, who will take her where she wants to go, bring her home in time for her beauty sleep and treat her henna-tinted hairs with respect.

* * *

The saving in hairdresser's bills alone would be something if every dollar taxicab trip entitles a man to wreck your $2 marcel and $20 worth of orchids.

* * *

Some men appear to feel that it would be a breach of courtesy, or at least a blow to a woman's vanity, if they did not TRY to kiss her at least once on the way home.

* * *

The tender caress that was once equivalent to a proposal of marriage has now become merely an automatic little formality—just a part of the evening's program, like settling the check, tipping the waiter, or dipping your finger-tips into the finger bowls. (Hohum!) The kiss in the car has been reduced from a trilling adventure to a tiresome custom.

* * *

Just when, where or how men got the idea that a girl is flattered or thrilled by these casual maulings it is hard to discover. For, nothing hurts a normal woman's vanity worse than being taken casually.

Nothing BORES a woman so much as an automatic, denatured kiss!

* * *

When petting was a novelty there may have been some slight charm of adventure or surprise in it. But there is no kick in a kiss which is as confidently expected as the cranberry sauce with the turkey or the bills on the first of the month, and which contains about as much sentiment as a postcard from Florida.

Both girls and men assure me that they are bored to tears with this "old Spanish custom." Yet, every man thinks that a girl EXPECTS him to kiss her, and every girl seems to think that a man expects HER to "expect" him to kiss her. And neither has the courage to defy the formula.

* * *

A kissless world would be as flat as an egg without salt; but a kiss, without meaning or sentiment, is just the salt without the egg!

A Telegram of Congratulations

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me what would be appropriate for a telegram to a nurse on the day she graduates? I. B.

THIS depends, of course, on how well you know her, and it is a bit difficult for an outsider to word a telegram without knowing this degree of friendship. But it might be worded something like this: "Every good wish to you on this important day, and all highest and deepest congratulations. May your life be full of happiness and success in this glorious work that you have so splendidly chosen."

Preliminary Greetings

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A says that it is proper for a gentleman to say, "How do you do?" first and "How are you?" next. B says a woman should say "How do you do?" first and ask, "How are you?" next. Who is right? S. S.

IT is the lady to whom the prerogative is given of saying first, "How do you do?" It is she who makes the acknowledgment of an acquaintance, who bows first, who say, "How do you do?" first and who first extends her hand to shake hands, if she wishes to shake hands.

Very Bad Table Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to eat cheese with a knife? A thinks he should take the cheese from the plate to his mouth on his knife—any kind of cheese? There has been quite a debate about this.

MRS. B. C.

THIS is very bad table manners—to take the cheese to one's mouth with the knife. If, for instance, the cheese is served with pie, the cheese should be eaten with the fork, as is the pie. If the cheese is served with crackers (say camembert cheese and saltines or hard cracker), the cheese is spread on the crackers, one mouthful at a time, and the mouthful taken in the fingers to the mouth.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE is one good feature of the new fashions; they dress the wrists. Designers are stressing cuffs, which have been cut out of the fashion world for a number of years. Soft, lacey fabrics are kind to hands that are not beautiful. A tight sleeve with no finish at the wrists makes even the prettiest, daintiest hands less attractive.

THE pointed neckline of the frock detracts from bulk, slims down the plumpish throat, and makes the prominent bust less noticeable.

GIRLS who are determined to carry on the suntan makeup whoopee, are using a bronze shade, dark suntan, to which green powder is added. Rose tan is a brown that blushes slightly. Arabian is a shade that goes the old tan one better. Only dark brunettes can use it.

SOME of our petted darlings mistake posing for posture. They drape themselves over cushions and put hand under chin. Affection, Sally. Mustn't be did. Not nice.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Dress to the Weather

SEEING the first robin winging northward on the breath of spring conjures up thoughts of other things than the approach of warm weather.

For one thing it means more care in regulating indoor temperatures, so a uniform warmth pervades the house for the sake of the baby or young child in the home. It means also, that a child shall be warmly enough clad on the cool wet days when out of doors.

The sudden spring changes of weather bring with them the usual epidemics of colds and resulting ills. The slight cold may grow into a chronic one if care is not taken in time.

Young children think nothing of running out of doors without coat or hat. Content lies in wading in every mud puddle available. If there is a wet place anywhere in sight there the average child wends his way. You can't change human nature!

A child's cold should not be neglected. An habitually running nose may lead to worse things if it is not cured. Some children are very susceptible to changes from a warm house to the cold out of doors. The slight cold hangs on for some time. Such a child should have cod-liver oil perhaps for two weeks out of every month. This builds up his resistance to colds.

A delicate child should be dressed for the weather. The clothing should be warm enough on the cool days, and lighter clothing should be worn on the warm days.

A cold on the chest is one of the most common ailments of young children. Wetting the feet, exposure to cold and insufficient clothing, are factors that cannot be overlooked. They are dangerous for almost any child.

There cannot be too much said about the advantages of sunlight in the early spring and summer months for the growing child. The early summer days seem long, indeed, to the school child. He wants to get out-of-doors. Every moment of the time possible a child should be out in the fresh air and sunshine.

On the first warm days a child may be fretful and peevish. He should be carefully watched to see if there is anything serious the matter. If underweight, your doctor should see the child and tell you what to do.

An underweight child should have plenty of nourishing food, the best of milk, cereals, fruits and vegetables. Not only do these supply food, but they give him those vitamins so necessary to growth and energy. Not only must he have the out-of-doors and sunshine, but also plenty of rest as well.

Rickets in children is an ailment that begins with underweight. Before the trouble progresses, have your doctor pass judgment upon your child's diet and general health.

Extremes of weather, either hot or cold, should be a time of great care to keep children from "catching cold," or from becoming overheated. So in the warm days dress a child so he will be comfortable, and on a cold day keep him protected with plenty of warm clothes.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 13

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds promise of flourishing mystical or spiritual matters, or success in all manner of curious or singular research or psychic experiences. The figure also heightens the musical and poetic faculty of a high order.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of success in singular or intriguing affairs, but employment may give concern and money matters are hazardous. Avoid speculation and loans.

A child born on this day may have a leaning toward the singular or unusual, or may succeed through stratagem or diplomacy rather than in routine avenues of employment.

Monday, April 14

MONDAY'S astrological map holds augury of the breaking away of some old obstacles, but also hints of complications and problems of a personal as well as business nature. These may be heightened by irascibility or impetuosity. It would be well to be on guard as to the physical safety.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of some personal as well as business complications and anxieties, which may be contributed to by a personal proclivity to rashness or impulsive actions or behavior. Care with correspondence and as to personal safety are enjoined. Some progress may be made by patience and diligence.

A child born on this day may be disposed to industry and application but may also be careless and indulgent in its personal conduct. He should be given firm training and discipline in self-control and discreet behavior.

INGOT OUTPUT DOWN IN MARCH

Current Rate Estimated At Between 77 and 79 Per Cent of Capacity

By B. E. V. LUTY

The average rate of steel ingot production in March, as shown by the official report this week, was only 2.7 per cent under the February rate, while it was 18 per cent over January and 42 per cent over December. Production of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots in the quarter is given at 12,143,406 tons, and adding a standard allowance of 1 per cent for electric and crucible ingots, reported annually but not monthly, makes 12,265,000 tons as the total for the quarter, confirming the forecast of 12,250,000 tons made in this report a week ago.

The recession in steel production which began about the middle of February was quite contrary to seasonal precedent and coupled with the smallness of mill backlogs, gave rise to unfavorable predictions for the future. These have not been verified, as the recession was slight and did not last long.

CURRENT RATE

The current rate of steel ingot production, all grades, is probably about half way between 160,000 and 165,000 tons per working day, or say 77 to 79 per cent of present capacity, estimating capacity at 4 per cent over the last official finding, which was for December 31, 1928. If this rate were continued for the remainder of the year, 234 working days after April 1, the year's total would just about equal that of 1928, would be 3,000,000 tons above any preceding year and less than 10 per cent under last year. That would be much better than was expected last December.

The Steel Corporation's report of 90,905 tons' increase in unfilled obligations during March was very favorable. In the last six years March showed an increase last year only, the other five years showing March decreases. It may seem curious to the uninitiated that there should be general comment on the smallness of mill backlogs at the present time, when the Steel Corporation reported as of April 1 unexecuted obligations 4,570,653 tons, which would be equal to four months of shipments at 80 per cent capacity, now about 55,150 tons per working day in steel products for sale. These are obligations of the seller rather than of the buyer, and include contracts. Some may not be specified against, others involve shipments date at various times in the future, against construction jobs, and some export tonnage is booked far ahead.

TREND FIRM

Mill backlogs, in the form of actual shipping orders, are relatively light, much lighter than at this date last year and year before, but circumstances are very different. Then buyers were afraid they would not receive desired deliveries and that prices would advance. Now they are certain they can lose nothing by waiting until the last moment to buy. Thus the lightness of mill backlogs, which are almost wholly in rails and in steel for structural fabricating and freight car building, is not in itself any evidence that steel production will decrease. A month ago, on the ground of light backlogs, a lower rate of production was expected for the present time than now exists.

There are no downward trends in steel requirements at the present time and there are some upward trends. This prospect covers only the next two or three months. Annual rail orders will be largely filled by July 1, freight car orders will maintain present car building for about that length of time, and fabricated structural steel business extends somewhat farther.

PRICES DOUBTFUL

Two upward trends are particularly to be noted. The automobile industry has called for about 10 per cent more steel to be delivered this month than last, which is not much, as the tonnage last month was light, but it is something and prospects are that heavy automobile production will come later this year than usual. In the last six years the average date of peak production has fallen late in April. Also there has been a sharp increase in demand for standard pipe, which had been decidedly light, while line pipe business is now beginning to count.

Steel prices on the whole do not seem to be in secure position. Doubts are entertained whether the open market lately quoted on bars, shapes and plates, 1.80c to 1.85c, will hold as to the major part of the tonnage, and sheet market is not firm at openly quoted prices, and some new low prices are reported on nails.

Better Tone in Flat Glass Market

There are mixed tendencies in the flat glass business, according to National Glass Budget. At this writing, however, conditions have not so shaped themselves as to be of sufficient value to determine what the outcome will be. Leaders in general lines of business see but little improvement so far this year. They are of the opinion that market conditions will move along slowly until midsummer is past. A much improved situation is anticipated for the last half of the year. In some lines of industry there has been a further recovery in business in the last month.

The demand for window glass continues to increase slowly with market conditions showing a firmer tone. Production remains at a very low figure and little change in the factory output is anticipated until warranted by new business. Producers are a little more particular as to the price at which orders for certain grades are booked. This statement applies particularly to "bargain glass" that had been moved out of the manufacturers warehouses at a ridiculously low price. In a number of instances very low quotations have been withdrawn.

BUILDING GAINS HERE

March contracts for building and engineering projects in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains reached a total of $459,119,000, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was the largest monthly total since August of last year; it registered the full seasonal increase of 45 per cent over February of this year, and it was only 5 per cent under March, 1929. Contracts in December, 1929, were 27 per cent under December, 1928; each succeeding month of this year has lessened the spread between current contract volume and that of a year ago. This year's first quarter contract total has amounted to $1,100,147,200, being approximately 12 per cent behind the corresponding period of 1929.

As in the case of the two preceding months, March awards for the construction of public works and utilities, totaling $105,349,800, led all other types at 23 per cent of the total. Contracts let for residential buildings amounted to $101,491,600, or 22 per cent of the aggregate; awards for commercial structures totaled $80,001,500, or 17 per cent, and lettings for industrial construction amounted to $74,332,600, or 16 per cent.

Contemplated new work of all kinds reported in March amounted to $732,735,900, compared with $780,209,400 reported in February, and $886,075,100 in March of last year.

The Pittsburgh district (Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky) enjoyed increases over both the preceding month and the corresponding month of last year in building and engineering contract awards during the past month. The March construction total amounted to $73,519,600, compared with $44,135,200 for contracts let in February, an increase of 67 per cent, compared with the March, 1929, record of $52,965,900, the gain was 39 per cent. Total awards since the first of the year in this territory have reached a sum of $155,332,600, which was only a decline of 3 per cent from the same period in 1929.

RAIL WAGES AT 1920 PEAK

Wage statistics for 1929, recently compiled, show that last year the average annual earnings of railway employes were higher than in any year in history, except 1920, and advanced more than in any other year since post-war wage reductions were made in 1921 and 1922, according to the Railway Age.

Average compensation per railway employe amounted to $1,820 in 1920. The lowest point since reached was in 1924, when it was $1,613, or $207 less than in 1920. Average compensation in 1920 was $1,742. This was $78 less than in 1920, but $129 more than in 1924, and $36 more than in 1928.

In 1929, as compared with 1928, average straight-time wages were increased from 61.3 cents an hour, for employes working on an hourly basis, to 62.5 cents, and from $8.29 a day to $8.42 for employes working on a daily basis.

WILLIAM PENN NATIONALLY KNOWN

Striking Features Gain Recognition for Hotel; Capacity 4,000 People

The William Penn Hotel is a city in itself capable of housing in the neighborhood of 4,000 people under capacity pressure and offering under a single roof most of the commercial facilities of the outside world. In addition to its tremendous volume of transient guests, The William Penn is "home" to a large number of Pittsburghers who make their permanent residence there. These are largely business people who value the comfort and convenience of this palatial downtown residence as compared with the inconvenience and expense of a home in the suburbs.

As a result of its recently added facilities, a large number of rooms and suites were made available for resident guest occupancy and at rates no higher than are asked for suburban rooms and apartments of similar furnishment and appointment. When the loss of time traveling back and forth between the suburbs plus the cost of this transportation is considered, the resident of a downtown home is both time and money ahead.

NEW FEATURES

Many striking features which have gained national recognition are incorporated in the enlarged William Penn. Chief among these is the Seventeenth Floor, an entire city block devoted to civic and social usage, and including the beautiful Urban Room, one of the most strikingly modernistic ball rooms in the world. Pirate Hall in the lower lobby is a colorful supper dancing rendezvous, and is adaptable at times for commercial, industrial and convention exhibits, being the second largest hotel room of its kind in the country. The three arcaded floors of specialty shops in the new Grant street section offer many of the quality wares to be found in a department store. Peacock Alley and the handsome new Grant street foyer and mezzanine are other new points of interest.

The hotel operates four dining rooms. They are the Italian Room, Georgian Grill, Cafeteria and Sandwich Shop. On the twenty-first floor are the elaborate studios of KDKA, the Westinghouse pioneer broadcasting station and one of the world's largest. In cubic content, the William Penn is the second largest in America, encompassing within its four walls nearly 13,000,000 cubic feet, or slightly more than the newest and largest hotel in New York City.

Traffic Body Seeks Marsh's Successor

Officers of the Better Traffic Committee at a meeting yesterday conferred over selection of a successor to City Traffic Engineer Burton W. Marsh, whose resignation is effective May 1. He resigned to accept a similar position in Philadelphia. Those attending the meeting were Frank L. Dugan, general chairman of the committee; Walter Rosenbaum and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., vice chairmen, and F. J. Kress, treasurer.

Pittsburgh Gets Arbitration Member

NEW YORK, April 12.—J. B. Conhelly, of the Mesta Machine Company, has been appointed to serve as arbitrator in local commercial disputes which are submitted to arbitration under the rules of the American Arbitration Association.

Business men are rapidly recognizing in arbitration a speedy, inexpensive and amicable method of settling their commercial controversies and the American Arbitration Association is constantly increasing and extending its national panel, so that it now has a membership of approximately 7,000 business and professional men whose services are available in 1700 industrial centers.

Director Of Public Works Calls Department City's Best Form Of Insurance

By EDWARD G. LANG,
Director of Public Works.

Due to the fact that the city of Pittsburgh purchases all of its materials and lets all of its construction work according to specifications, it has become positively essential to have trained and experienced technical men for this work. Various problems requiring the services of capable scientific investigators are constantly arising.

New materials, new methods, and new ways of application are continually being developed and the Bureau of Tests has been able to furnish authorative information on these subjects. In these days of high powered advertising and salesmanship, exaggerated claims, bright promises and colorful words, only scientific analyses and tests can determine the real quality and true facts.

The Bureau of Tests does a great amount of work for departments other than the Department of Public Works and also writes many of the specifications for the materials purchased by the city.

ASPHALT

The City of Pittsburgh lays approximately 500,000 square yards of bituminous pavement and 100,000 square yards of maintenance work each year. Part of this work is on the main roads or heavy traffic streets and part on residential or light traffic streets.

The Asphalt Division in the Bureau of Tests, is a new division recently created to supervise the materials and design asphalt mixtures for stability and permanence. The terrific increase in traffic has caused new problems that can be solved only by careful scientific study.

SAVINGS MADE

The value received by superior quality of materials accepted, in accordance with good specifications and rigid inspection, far exceeds the total cost of the Bureau of Tests. The laboratory is the best insurance and one of the cheapest institutions maintained by the city. It accomplishes the city testing and inspection of materials at less than half the cost commercial laboratories would charge. Every great corporation has its well-equipped laboratory because it pays.

Street failures alone have been decreased 93 per cent in the last four years, due not only to better materials and inspection, but to better organization and better business methods by those in authority.

AVIATION CORP. HOLDINGS UP

NEW YORK, April 12.—The annual report to stockholders of Graham B. Grosvenor, president of Aviation Corporation, reveals that since the close of the year the market quotations for the securities owned by the company at December 31, 1929, have increased with the result that to March 26, 1930, market value of these securities exceeded the book value by $2,592,629, or 84 cents a share. This amount of 84 cents is not included in the figure for net tangible assets of $11.22 a share.

At the present time company controls more than 7,000 miles of airways, and company's planes are flying more than 20,000 miles daily, serving 57 cities in the United States and two in Canada. System includes seven of the 25 contract air mail routes. Of a total of 13,067,485 miles flown in the United States in 1929 for air mail, company accounted for 3,351,211 miles.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Air Brake to Report Gain in Profits

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

EARNINGS of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company for the first quarter of 1930 showed a pronounced gain over the corresponding period of last year according to A. L. Humphrey, president.

Both the Air Brake Company and its subsidiary, Union Switch and Signal, have large volumes of orders on their books which will keep plants producing at a high rate until late in the year. A large number of installations of cab signal systems are being made. The company also has several attractive orders for Hannauer car retarder systems.

Following a meeting held yesterday with Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, Mr. Humphrey expressed the opinion that the recently completed arrangement between the two companies would prove decidedly advantageous to both.

Bendix-Westinghouse Brake

ON APRIL 1 the automotive brake division of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company was turned over to the newly formed Bendix-Westinghouse Automotive Brake Company, which is jointly owned by Bendix and Westinghouse. Through the Bendix affiliation with General Motors, a larger market for automotive brakes will be secured. Bendix now supplies most of the brakes used on General Motors cars. Westinghouse will continue to manufacture the brakes.

Mr. Bendix expressed the opinion that the combination of the research activities of the two organizations would be one of the greatest benefits of the arrangement. He stated that most of the products were the result of enormous expenditures for experimental work. The merger of the brake departments would eliminate a large amount of duplicated effort and would give each company the advantage of the research work of the other.

Litigation Ended

THE consolidation also brought to an end the patent litigation between Westinghouse and Bragg, Kliesrath over the right to make vacuum brakes for automobiles. Bragg, Kliesrath was recently acquired by Bendix. The vacuum brakes are designed for pleasure cars while the air brakes are adapted to heavy trucks and buses.

Mr. Bendix stated that the aircraft equipment end of his organization's business was showing very satisfactory improvement. Sales in this field are greater than a year ago.

He also stated that the principal purpose of his visit to Pittsburgh was to develop plans for the expansion of the sale of Westinghouse automotive brakes.

Shows Steady Gains

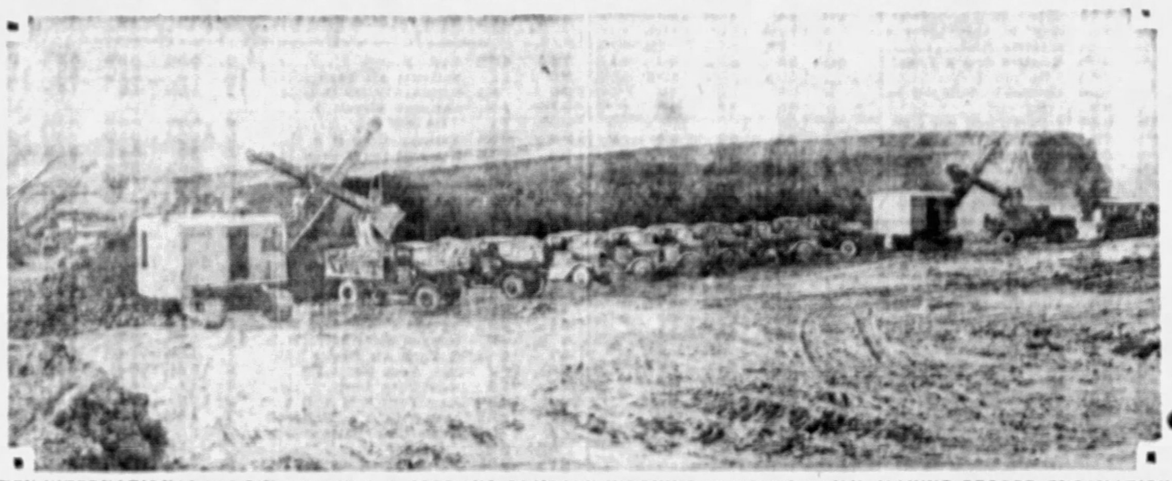
JUDGING from the remarks made about the business of Westinghouse Air Brake by Mr. Humphrey, the company may be expected to show continued expansion of earnings. Since the first quarter of 1928, every quarter has been marked by greater earnings than the preceding quarter with only one exception.

The following table shows quarterly earnings for the past three years:

Quarter—	1929.	1928.	1927.
First	$1,924,893	$1,447,968	$2,802,799
Second	2,123,539	1,482,382	2,444,484
Third	2,115,678	1,720,113	1,735,825
Fourth	2,658,683	1,840,094	1,536,901
Total	$8,822,711	$6,490,557	$8,520,009
Per share	$2.78	$2.04	$2.68

All indications point to better results for the full year of 1930 than were shown in 1929. Westinghouse is one of the few organizations in the Pittsburgh district that is enjoying a good volume of business at satisfactory prices at present.

Averaging 2,000 Cubic Yards of Earth Daily



TEN INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS OF THE A. F. JORDANO COMPANY WORKING 20 HOURS DAILY, MAKING RECORD EXCAVATION

GOOD RECORD FOR FIRM

The A. F. Jordano Company, paving, excavating and grading contractors, have been associated with and held contracts on some of the large developments in and around Pittsburgh. This firm had some of the excavating contract on the Municipal Airport and made a name for itself by the manner in which the work on this improvement was handled. With a fleet of 10 International motor trucks, working 20 hours a day, they averaged 2,000 cubic yards of earth and rock daily. Work on the airport will be finished soon.

In addition to this contract, the Jordano Company has recently completed a four-mile stretch of 18-foot concrete road on the Lincoln Highway between Imperial and Clinton, Pa.; also an extensive repaving job on West Liberty avenue, a three-quarter mile stretch of the William Flynn Highway and many paving and sewer jobs in Mt. Lebanon.

The A. F. Jordano Company was formed in 1918 by the present president of the company, A. F. Jordano. Mr. Jordano's father was a contractor for 25 years prior to the formation of the company and during this time A. F. Jordano was associated with his father in the contracting work. Through their experience over this period of years both men gained a practical working knowledge of the excavating, grading and paving business.

The successful completion of the many contracts which the Jordano firm has had reflects truly the judgment and understanding of the men responsible for the operation of the Jordano Company.

Burley & Co. Gets Nine Spiegel Stores

CHICAGO, April 12.—Purchase of the Spiegel chain of nine furniture stores was announced by Burley & Company, the second oldest mercantile establishment in Chicago. Spiegel's is a subsidiary of Spiegel, May, Stern and Company. The acquired stores will be operated under the name of Burley and Company. Burley has been in business here 92 years.

Increase in Active Blast Furnaces

As of April 1 there were 185 blast furnaces active in the United States, or 58.1 per cent of the total of 318 available. This is a net gain of six furnaces from March 1, when 179 furnaces or 56.3 per cent were active. The above figure is obtained from complete returns; preliminary returns had shown a net gain of only four furnaces over March 1.

No Objection to Sao Paulo Loan

WASHINGTON, April 11.—State Department has no objection to proposed loan to Brazil for stabilization of coffee market, Acting Secretary of State Cotton said.

State of Sao Paulo, Brazil, is understood to be seeking a loan of about $100,000,000 through a syndicate of interpational bankers both in London and New York.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—According to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce for the week ended April 5, business, as indicated by the volume of check payments, was more than 20 per cent higher than in the previous week, but about 10 per cent lower than for the corresponding week of 1929. Steel plants during the latest reported week showed greater productive activity than during the previous week, but about 21 per cent less activity than that of a year ago. Production of bituminous coal was larger for both periods, while petroleum and lumber production both showed decreases.

The value of building contracts showed a decline of about 20 per cent from the previous week and was also less than for the corresponding week of last year. The general index of wholesale prices was slightly higher than last week, but 7 per cent lower than it was in 1929 for the corresponding week. The composite iron and steel price was slightly lower than last week and 5 per cent lower than last year, and the price for cotton middling was higher than it was a week ago, but nearly 20 per cent below what it was a year ago.

Bank loans and discounts at the end of the week were higher than in either the previous week or the same period of the preceding year. Prices for stocks continued to rise and were but slightly below those for 1929. Auto Buying On Time Gains Abroad

WASHINGTON, April 12.—An American-established custom which has leaped into sudden popularity abroad is that of selling automobiles on installments. Indeed, a review just issued by the commerce department on installment selling practices abroad indicates that foreign buyers in many countries are out-doing Americans in its adoption.

In the United States, it is calculated that about 68 per cent of passenger cars are sold on time. In Australia and New Zealand about 75 per cent of cars are now moving on time, and if the cheapest models are considered alone, 80 per cent are so sold. In the Philippine Islands, the figure rises to 90 per cent, and in China it is about 75. Egypt is another country with 90 per cent installment selling, and in Northern Africa it runs almost to the same point.

Business Being Stimulated by Wall Street Rise

—By B. C. FORBES—

PLEASE credit Wall Street for having been the most powerful booster of cheerful sentiment during the last month and more. When many employers others were disposed to do ng but retrench, the Stock ket courageously went i. This exhibition of faith, carrying with it very substantial gains in the market value of securities, has done more than any other one thing to check pessimism and to inspire hopefulness.

Of course, if industry, business and prosperity lag behind the market overlong and overfar, Wall Street cannot be expected to keep up its forward March. In the highest financial circles the feeling during the last fortnight has been that most stocks have risen quite enough for the present and that a moderate setback would be logical before carrying average prices to distinctly higher levels than any yet attained this year.

THE so-called Big Ten, of which W. C. Durant is a leader, are again active. They have found it feasible to put up several issues and are encouraged thereby.

When Durant is in action he thinks nothing of turning over anywhere from one million to one-and-a-half million shares a month. Of course his colossal profits were drastically reduced when the panic struck; but he has participated extensively in this year's increase in market values. He has, I understand, been especially active in General Motors, his first love.

TALKING of General Motors, I hear that plans are contemplated for knitting together that corporation's various aircraft subsidiaries and affiliations. This would place in the field another big company to share honors with Charles E. Mitchell's United Aircraft and C. M. Keys' Curtiss-Wright combinations.

Fokker shares have more than doubled in price from their low level of this year, while Bendix—another General Motors concern—has done almost as well. One day during the heat of the panic I asked Mr. Mitchell to name a few stocks he regarded as bargains. He promptly mentioned United Aircraft, then selling at 45. It has lately sold within a point of 100. Strong aircraft companies are doing quite well; weaker one are doing poorly. Another illustration that usually it pays to buy the best.

OUR leather and leather manufacturers' exports last year showed a decrease of 12 per cent compared with 1924, but is increased 194 per cent. the leather industry's for tariff protection.

BIG construction work is now actually beginning to boom in many sections of the country.

THE Van Sweringens and President Willard, of the B. & O., appear to be making more progress than any others towards achieving their combination ambitions. The Van Sweringens and Willard are great believers in conciliation, in attaining results with a minimum of friction. Gen. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania, and President Loree, of Delaware & Hudson, are regarded as fighters. Consequently, both have many opponents.

Merger-makers on a grand scale had better lose no time in effecting their purpose, because public sentiment, long quiescent, threatens to become antagonistic.

AT A dinner tendered Joe Toplitsky, of Los Angeles, this week, in New York, President H. S. Brown, of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, one of the hosts, after mentally surveying the career of the 40 guests, of whom probably 35 were millionaires or multi-millionaires, observed privately that each man present was entirely self-made, that there was not one rich man's son at the table.

In course of conversation I could not but smile at the easy way Adolph Zukor, one of the most modest of men, talked about offering $40,000,000 for this company and of being prepared to pay $40,000,000 more than another company was actually worth—because he saw in it great possibilities.

Incidentally, Harry Warner confessed to me that the first time scores of incurable, bedridden patients were trundled in to view, lying flat on their backs, the novel talkie he has installed in a New York hospital, he had to beat a hurried exit.

Many of the incurables never had before seen or heard a motion picture.

"One man read what you said in your column about it the other day and had told me that he is going to do the same thing for another hospital," said Mr. Warner. "Anyone who is looking for better dividends than he ever got before," he added, "should do the same thing."

WILL Congress please do what it has to do and skat?

INTEREST DROP BRINGS NEW FINANCING

Speculators Desert Banks To Borrow Funds From Brokers at Lower Rate

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, April 12.—With the decline in interest rates to present low levels, there has been a return to normal methods of financing speculation and investment.

Individuals who took the financing of partially paid for securities out of brokerage offices to their own banks before the panic during the regimen of abnormally high interest rates have begun to switch back to the usual channels. Carrying charges on speculative accounts in Wall street brokerage houses declined to 4¾ per cent last month, and accordingly bank customers who were paying 6 per cent on collateral loans found it advantageous to pay off bank loans and open up marginal accounts.

This movement has represented a return flow of business to brokerage offices, which disappeared during the pre-panic days when carrying charges ran about 10 per cent. When Wall street carrying charges were pathologically high, it was economy for men of good credit to borrow directly from the banks at 6 per cent, rather than to borrow through brokers as intermediaries at 10 per cent.

LOANS BY BANKS

As a matter of fact, it is more healthy for the banks to make brokers' loans for speculative purposes than direct collateral loans to customers, for the brokers' loans are impersonal and except in panic times can ruthlessly be called at will, whereas in demand collateral loans to customers bankers are restrained by the personal equation and the desire to keep the good will of patrons.

Although the steady advance in brokers' loans since the beginning of March indicates some deterioration in the quality of stock buying, the increase in part represents only a change in methods of financing.

In March, while brokers' loans were increasing significantly, the statistics published by reporting member banks in leading cities indicate that they were reducing their direct collateral loans to customers to the extent of $111,000,000 during the month. Meantime, brokers' loans, as reported by the Federal Reserve Bank, increased during the month by $479,000,000.

NEW TARIFF BILL

The best opinion is that in a short time the conference committee in Congress will agree on a tariff bill, which President Hoover will sign. This will clear up a retarding factor in the business situation. Uncertainty about tariff schedules his contributed to recession and unemployment. Yet many of the first-rate business leaders in the country are rather dissatisfied with the bill, which is notoriously unscientific in its schedules. Some captains of industry, looking further ahead than their nose, think that the people may grow soft behind a tariff wall, whereas they would strengthen their industrial fiber by getting on nearer a competitive basis with the outside world. They feel that with superior industrial organization, mass production, and an unrivaled home market that the great American companies could compete effectively with world markets, and that such protection as is needed ought to be formulated after careful fact surveys by experts, instead of through existing political methods of logrolling.

If the threatened high tariff goes through, for example, it will be a needless slap at the welfare of Cuba. Leading business executives think that American business is destined to have a remarkable expansion in the export field in the coming decade, if the atmosphere is not beclouded by blunders in tariff making.

PLAN MEETING ON CREDIT

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The rapid progress being made in the establishment of local credit bureaus as part of the plan of the Associated General Contractors of America for the stabilization of credit in the construction industry will be a major subject for discussion at the executive board meeting of that organization in Washington, April 28. The loose credit practices that have hitherto prevailed are held by contractors to be largely responsible for the occasional rendering of inadequate construction service to owners and for the enforcement of double payments from owners under existing lien laws.

Frozen, uncollectable and past due accounts that have resulted from loose credit policies are estimated by the contractors' association to run well over $200,000,000 annually and are considered to be one of the factors contributing to unsatisfactory conditions in both the construction industry and in general business.

The move of general contractors to stabilize credit is said to be receiving the enthusiastic support of organized building supply dealers, sub-contractors, surety companies, financial institutions and other groups and is represented as being the first time in history that a group of buyers has proposed that more stringent credit terms be established.

Utah Copper Company Dividend Payments Larger.

THE annual report of the Utah Copper Company would, it seems, suggest the importance to the mining companies of the maintenance of the 18-cent price for the metal. For last year this company, almost wholly owned by the Kennecott Copper Corporation, reported net profit after all charges except depletion reserve of $33,660,379, contrasted with $24,876,246 the year before and $14,587,032 in 1927. Surplus after dividends, however, was but $1,170,579, contrasted with $11,880,326 in 1928 and $4,840,092 in 1927. The small surplus was accounted for by the fact that a total of $32,489,800 was disbursed last year in dividends, more than two and one-half times the $12,995,920 so disbursed the year before and about three and one-half times the total disbursement of 1927. Under the circumstances it would seem that at least some of the copper dividends at present rates hinge rather heavy on good business at the present price level.

Wall Street as a rule usually finds an explanation for things that happen in the stock market. As might have been expected, yesterday's selling movement, causing reactionary tendencies to prevail through the general list, was ascribed chiefly to the news of the panic on the Tokyo stock exchange. The upheaval in the Japanese market may have carried some influence, but it was generally conceded that developments there served more as a convenient excuse to explain the selling here than as a real cause. The disturbance in Tokyo was brought about by wholly local conditions, namely the severe depression in the silk and cotton goods markets which left the shares of the leading companies in those industries open to terrific raiding by market bears with declines in those issues having undermined the general market.

THIS week's condition statements of the Federal Reserve did not appear to indicate any early change from present easy conditions in the money situation. The total of Federal Reserve credit outstanding, which rose more than $80,000,000 last week, was reduced by $52,000,000 in the period which the current figures cover. The reduction was due chiefly to a drop of $34,000,000 in holding of open market bills, while rediscounts also were cut and holdings of government securities reduced slightly. Holdings of open market bills purchased for foreign correspondings also were reduced moderately. These changes together with a slight drop in note circulation provided the basis for a smart upturn in the reserve ratio.

The relatively small floating supply of Brooklyn Union Gas accounted for its volatile movements in the past, but with the utility group apparently coming back into its old time popularity, further sharp advances in this issue are not unlikely. An important feature of its financial make-up is that unlike the majority of public utility corporations, the capital stock makes up the largest part of its capitalization. Net income for 1929 represented an increase of 35 per cent over the previous year, equivalent to $7.66 per share on the average number of shares outstanding.

THE general buoyancy of the food section of the market has enlisted the support of important market interests to the possibilities of Corn Products, which one source has declared should be selling in line with American Can. This company is the largest manufacturer of corn products in the United States and does business in every country in the world. A comparative analysis of the steady growth in earning power is revealed in the showing of the past three years when $5.75, $4.52 and $4.01 were reported per share in 1929, 1928 and 1927, respectively.

Stockholders of Western Union were cheered considerably by Newcomb Carlton's prediction that six months' dividend would be covered by earnings for the half-year period despite the poor first quarter showing. Mr. Carlton, who had planned to go to Europe this week, has postponed his trip in view of unsettled business conditions. Western Union at present is nearly 100 points under the high of a year ago. Company has always proved a strong factor in depressions, and the first quarter results are due to a combination of circumstances, including the serious cable breaks.

NO NATION FREE FROM BLAME ON DOPE

Delegates to Narcotics Conference at Geneva Sidestep Responsibility

This second of a series of six articles on the dope evil reveals the operations of a world-wide network of illicit drug syndicates. It tells how smugglers of opium, morphine, cocaine, heroin and other deadly drugs evade the law.

By G. W. L. DAY.

LONDON, April 12.—Torn between jealousy of national interests and fear of the enormous proportions of the illicit traffic, the delegates at Geneva, where the League of Nations Committee on opium and narcotics was held this winter, have fenced and parried with the skill of trained diplomats. No nation is entirely innocent of blame just as no nation is free from grave danger.

PUBLIC UNEASY

The public, reading reports of this intricate drama, feels vaguely uneasy. There are so many disturbing contradictions. China, we are told, has how suppressed opium production; yet enormous supplies of Chinese opium are in circulation. British India is flooding China with opium.

Japan, so her representative assures us, absorbs all her output of manufactured drugs; yet British India is being deluged with cocaine, and the contraband bears Japanese marks and letterings.

France and Switzerland are repeatedly whitewashed by their delegates; yet Russel Pasha is able to show us two or three drug factories in those countries which have turned Egypt into a nation of addicts.

Add to these disclosures the fact that Turkey, Persia, Russia and Afghanistan, four of the world's biggest opium-producing countries, are outside the convention, and that coca leaves, from which cocaine is manufactured, grow wild in Java.

OUTLOOK DISQUIETING

It will be seen that the outlook is extremely disquieting.

The health committee of the League of Nations has estimated that seven grains of raw opium per head is a generous annual allowance for the medical and scientific needs of the 744,000,000 inhabitants of the world who come within the scope of doctors and laboratories.

This makes the world's legitimate allowance of raw opium about 340 tons. Actually the amount produced every year is at least 8,000 tons. In other words, 4¼ per cent of the world's yearly production of opium is being used for medical and scientific purposes, while the remaining 95¾ per cent is being sold to addicts in one form or another, largely by illicit traffickers.

Yet, in 1927, a firm in Basle, Switzerland, for example, exported 3,500 pounds of heroin to Holland alone, that is, a sufficient quantity to satisfy the medical needs of Great Britain for 12 years.

Since 1925 no fewer than 500,000 Egyptians have succumbed to the drug habit.

The smoking of "dagga," a preparation from Indian hemp, has become a grave problem in South Africa.

A commission which recently investigated conditions in Persia reports that no fewer than half the inhabitants are smokers of opium.

In Canada the situation is extremely serious, especially among the younger generation.

PRISONS HOLD ADDICTS

The prisons of the United States are overflowing with dope addicts, and in South America cocainism is gaining ground rapidly.

Many parts of Siberia are liberally supplied with illicit drugs. On the east coast there are "stores" through which collies thrust their bare arms, after paying a small sum, to receive an injection of morphine. Many are literally tattooed with the hypodermic needle, and thousands die every year of starvation and blood poisoning.

The tale of horror is endless. On all sides it is clear that at least one-tenth of the entire population of the globe is in danger of being poisoned by a flood of opium, hashish and manufactured drugs from illicit sources, only one-hundredth of which is intercepted by the authorities.

(The third article of this series, to appear Monday, tells of the enormous profits to be made in the drug traffic.)

WARN AGAINST FUND AGENT

The Pittsburgh Welfare Fund today issued a warning against an imposter who has been soliciting funds in the name of the Red Cross. The imposter has no connection with the Red Cross which is a member of the Welfare Fund and does no soliciting of any kind at any time.

According to reports the man in question has been calling on houses in the South Side, and asking for $2.50 for the Red Cross. For this sum he promises to get the names of contributors on the books of the Red Cross as members and in addition states that the Red Cross will provide an order of groceries, rent and employment for needy families.

TRADE OUTLOOK IMPROVES HERE

While conditions in the wholesale and retail trades are showing a slight improvement, distribution still continues below last year's rate, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Buying continues on a conservative basis, purchases being confined almost entirely to immediate requirements. Automobile distributors report a slightly better demand, but are making disposition of used cars, of which the stock in this district is estimated to be nearly 25 per cent larger than a year ago.

Sound Equipment Prices Reduced

NEW YORK, April 12.—Electrical Research Products, subsidiary of Western Electric, announces a new scale of prices for Standard Western Electric sound equipment, starting as low as $2,950 for a new system designed and manufactured especially for small theaters.

Telegraph Orders Reflect Trade Pick-Up

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Western Union Telegraph Company announces a pronounced change in the last few days in favor of telegraph orders. This change is seen as indicating a sudden upturn in buying and belated realization by many merchants that their stocks, now low, must be replenished immediately or be found short during the Easter season. Telegraphed orders are pouring into principal markets in large volume. Observers interpret this as reflecting a quickening in the movement of recovery and corresponding improvement in confidence in business.

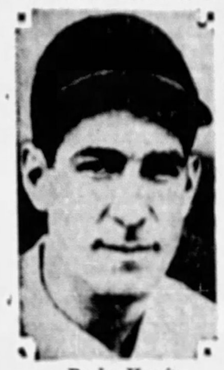
KREMER TO TEST PELICANS

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Bench Pilots' Big Year. First Complete Season. Grampp's Odd Record. | Cards Regret Trade. Boston Stops Fouls. State Boy's Pro Start.

ONLY HARRIS MAY BREAK UP CIRCLE

UNLESS Bucky Harris, boss of the Detroit Tigers, decides to continue his custom of taking an occasional turn as a pinch-hitter, the end of the approaching baseball season may set veteran fans to searching their memories for another instance in which both major leagues went through an entire season without at least one club manager actively participating in some part of a game. They won't find such an instance, for there is none in the books, but 1930 is likely to be the first, barring the possibility that Harris may break in before the finish.



Bucky Harris

When the big loops opened their pennant campaigns a year ago they were not without at least the suggestion of a playing manager, as Billy Southworth, then piloting the St. Louis Cardinals, announced that while he would direct his team from the bench as a general rule he intended to appear in the lineup at any time his services might be needed. And he did. He played in the outfield in five games and went to bat 32 times in a total of 19 contests.

NOR was Southworth the only skipper to figure in field activities during the year. Harris was at bat 11 times for his Tigers, and even Lena Blackburne, then manager of the Chicago White Sox, appeared in a box score once. Blackburne pitched one-third of an inning on June 5 in a game in which the Red Sox lambasted Chicago, 17 to 2.

But this year the fade-out of playing managers that has been in progress for several seasons seems likely to be carried to the point of completion. There is no more likelihood that the name of Mack, Shawkey, Killefer, Peckinpaugh, Bush, Johnson or Wagner will be seen in an American League box score than there is that Ens, McGraw, McCarthy, Street, McKechnie, Shotton, Robinson or Howley will take any part as a player in the National loop. Harris presents the only possibility of a break in what will otherwise be the first uninterrupted season of bench rule.

WHEN the Cubs yesterday released Pitcher Hank Grampp, along with Hurlers George Bell and Ed Lautenbacher, to their International League farm at Reading a pitching job that had no parallel in major league history was abolished.

No other flinger ever had a berth in the big show that was quite like Grampp's, and his service record stands as the only one of its kind on record. He put in three full seasons with the Bruins, but in all that time he started only one game and took part in only three.

Hank Grampp

HANK held the distinction, if it may be so called, of being the only pitcher in the majors who was carried solely for batting practice. His duty was to pitch to the Cub batters in their hitting drills. He was used on the mound for two innings against the Cards on June 21, 1927, and for one inning against the Giants on August 30, of the same year. More than two years passed before he again appeared in a game. He was allowed to begin the final event of last season against the Pirates on October 6, his first and only start in the majors, but was knocked out in two innings. In three full years of major services, therefore, Grampp pitched a total of only five innings in championship ball games. Yet in his daily practice duties he actually did more work than any other member of the Bruin staff.

THE latest revival of the report that Outfielder Al Simmons is a holdout brings from Connie Mack nothing more than the statement that he would not dignify such rumors by making any comment on the subject. He said that Simmons will be in uniform when the opening game with the Yankees is played next Tuesday and will appear in left field if his ankles are in condition.

Simmons missed the opening games in both 1928 and 1929, as it has always been Mack's policy not to start him until he was fit to play regularly. Connie says he has the same ideas this year, and will not start the hard hitter until he is sure that Al is ready.

PROBABLY the Cardinal bosses would now be glad to cancel the deal made with John McGraw a couple of days ago, in which they traded Outfielder Walter Roettger for Infielder Eddie Farrell and Outfielder George Fisher.

Ernest Orsatti

For 24 hours later it developed that Ernest Orsatti, who had been counted upon for the right-field position, had suffered a fracture of the smaller bone in one of his legs, slightly above the ankle, and will be lost to the team for an indefinite period. Roettger, though not so fast since he was hurt last year, would have fitted in acceptably in the emergency, but now that he is no longer available Manager Street will have to use Fisher or Homer Peel to plug the hole.

ORSATTI and Chick Fullis are the latest additions to the longest list of outfield casualties the major leagues have known in a spring training period in many years. Chicago in the National League is about the only club that has escaped, and the Cubs' good fortune on the picket line has been offset by the loss of Rogers Hornsby, Charley Grimm and Lester Bell from the infield. Hornsby and Grimm, by the way, will be able to play in the opener Tuesday, but Clarence Blair will be at third base in place of Bell, whose throwing arm is still bothering him. Joe McCarthy has picked Sheriff Blake as his pitcher for the curtain-raiser.

ALEX MacLEAN, matchmaker at the Boston Garden, believes he has found the real cure for the fouling evil in boxing contests. He shared the belief that if fighters were made to pay for such offenses, without any "ifs" or "buts" they would quickly abandon the practice.

MacLean announced a few weeks ago that no fouling boxers would be paid at his club. There was no loophole, no chance that extenuating circumstances might lessen the punishment. "If you foul it will be at your own expense; you'll get no money," he warned the fighters. Since that time 40 fights, big and little, have been held in the Boston Garden without a single foul.

A PROFESSIONAL fistic career in decided contrast to the feeble accomplishments of nearly all of the college boxing stars who have ventured among the paid brigade of ringdom is being predicted by many close observers of pugilism for Allie Wolff, the former Penn

MICKEY DOWN EIGHT TIMES, BOUT HALTED

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Mr. Ripley should be writing this story. It's one of those Believe It Or Not things.

You don't have to believe it, but Young Saylor, of Charleroi, long known as a Punchless Wonder, albeit a master of ring strategy and clever execution with his left hand, last night won by a technical knockout over Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, in the ninth round of the scheduled 10-round main bout before a handful of fans in the Moose Temple.

And not only that, BUT—

He floored the rugged Mickey EIGHT times before the referee, Joe Keally, intervened after 1 minute 45 seconds of the ninth round, and the bell saved Mickey at the count of three at the end of both the seventh and eighth rounds after he had been down for two counts of nine in each of these sessions, and he was down again for nine before the final knockdown in the last round. On the second knockdown in the seventh round, he was knocked through the ropes onto the platform extending on the stage.

IMPROVES WITH AGE

Ol' Man River Homer Gobert, who goes by the name of Young Saylor, certainly is improving with age. The father of three young daughters, one of whom is undergoing treatment at a local hospital for a foot ailment, looks better each time out. In his last four starts at the Moose Temple, he has beaten Tom Malco, only to be deprived of the decision; walloped Gene Moretti after the latter had beaten Solomen, and then plastered Malco again up to last night's most sensational victory over Solomen, who in his two most recent starts in the Moose ring had knocked out Buck McTiernan and Jackie Wilson. Saylor's wife was a spectator at his victory last night.

The issue never was in doubt after a close opening round last night. Saylor got the hang of Mickey's style in those first three minutes and thereafter left-handed him to the head and body as only Ol' Homer can left-hand 'em and tied up the game and willing Mickey inside. Mickey started off with a burst of speed to begin the sixth round, and landed a series of head punches, one of which opened an old cut on Saylor's left eye. Then Saylor went to work in earnest. Before the round was over he had Mickey in distress from a bombardment of lefts to the body.

Mickey was swinging wild to start the seventh and a left hook to the jaw spilled him hard for a count of nine. A left followed by a right propelled him out of the ring onto the stage for another count of nine and he was groggy when he clambered back to be sent down again and be saved by the bell at the count of three.

Solomen was ready for the "kill" in the eighth. He couldn't hold up his hands and had to use the ring to avoid punishment. Saylor stalked him with the coolness that comes from experience. Finally, two lefts to the body doubled Mickey and he took another count of nine. He got up swinging and took another left in the body for his fourth count of nine and was battered down again to be saved by the bell at the count of three. Two more knockdowns in the ninth, the first for a count of nine, finished it, Referee

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 12.—With only two more battles remaining on their long barnstorming card, the Pirates today were determined to get back into a winning streak. They almost dropped a contest to the Pelicans yesterday which would have rung up three setback in a row. A ninth-inning rally gave the big leaguers a hair-line victory. The score was 6 to 5.

RAY ON SLAB

Manager Ens stated this morning that he expected Remy Kremer to work the bigger portion of the second game with Larry Gilbert's ball tossers. That announcement automatically eliminated Frenchy for the opener on Tuesday and it narrows the field of probable starters to Heinie Meine and Ervin Brame, with a slim chance that Larry French will be on the slab. In any event Kremer will not pitch in the inaugural and Ens doubtless will call upon either the St. Louis Dutchman or the tall Kentuckian. Rolly Hemsley is likely to be behind the bat.

Skipper Ens' new lineup made the Pirates more impressive yes-

NO. 12.
JAMES A. DEVLIN,
Nemacolin Country Club.

Scientific experiments, to prove the best way golf should be played and to put instructing on a more solid foundation, has been a hobby of Jolly Jim Devlin, Nemacolin's ever-smiling professional, for years. Possibly his deep interest in leavoring to make the most of his research work has made him one of the smartest instructors in the game. Jimmy will tell you he doesn't score so well any more because he's getting old, that he doesn't sing any more (and he's a marvelous entertainer with that fascinating Irish voice of his), because he's lost the knack. But that isn't altogether true—his playing has suffered from his teaching, his constant work toward progressive instruction. His voice is weakened from "pounding it in" on his pupils—but maybe we're only kidding about that. At any rate, Irish Jimmy started playing at the links game in Philadelphia 20 years ago, his first job being with Jim Barnes, the long, lean, lanky one, at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club. He went from there to Porto Rico, where he won the open championship for a number of years, returning to the United States to affiliate with Nemacolin, where he is starting his ninth year. While Jim has always occupied a winter berth in Porto Rico, San Juan in particular, he didn't go down this season, but does not think it impossible he will be among those present next winter. He has done much to put golf on the map in San Domingo and St. Thomas, as well as in Porto Rico. He's a real guy.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

MOTOR SQUARE CLOSES SOON

Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, and Vincent Hambright, of Cincinnati, who meet in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night, are due in town tomorrow morning and will indulge in final light workouts here. Baker will go through his paces at Flynn's gym, while Hambright, a Filipino, will perform in the Motor Square gym.

The boxing show Monday night will be the last for two weeks in the Garden, the Sports Show getting under way there next Saturday for a week's stand. It will not be possible to fix up the seats in time for a show two weeks from Monday, and it is likely that only two more shows will be held in the East End arena after Monday night—on May 5 and 12—before the Garden closes its boxing season because of warm weather.

The Low-down On the Pirates

By The Benchwarmer

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—Well, folks, there's only five or six of us rookies left ,but I ain't got any more worries than one of these darky boys that sit in the bleachers in this league. We're gettin' closer to a pay day all the time and I know from what Chick Fraser tells me that I'm in pretty good even if I haven't showed much. On the long ride from Texas over to Mobile we played a lot of five and ten and I was lucky enough to win three berries—and that ain't the only break I had.

When we was in Fort Worth and Dallas I met a dozen of Paul and Lloyd Waner's friends that came down from Oklahomy to see them play ball. They was regular guys because they insisted on takin some of us out to dinner. I only had to pay for my breakfast in those towns, and you know they give us three dollars and six bits to eat on a day. So you see I was able to save quite a bit, and the three dollars I won on the train put me in fine shape for the last week.

WON'T BORROW MONEY

We still get about twenty berries for meal money before the ball rings, so I'm all set till we get a pay. I had my mind made up not to borrow any money from any player or to get any advance money from the club and I wouldn't write home for none. The newspaper fellows knew several of the rookies was broke and they offered to let us have a five-spot, but when the season opens I want to be all washed up like Monday afternoon. I'm in this old game partly to make some money and even if I am a busher you won't see me passing out to dig dry oil wells like some of the stars do.

I was sorry to see Johnny Skube and Johnny O'Connell leave the team. I roomed with them a

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, April 12.—My thoughtful and big hearted boss, Clark Griffith, has given free passes to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and now they won't have to pay to get into our games. I understand senator Grundy, of Pennsylvania, didn't mind letting the President get put on the free list as long as there is a stiff tariff on baseballs that are manufactured in Philadelphia.

Nick Altrock

Mr. Hoover will throw out the first ball the opening day and that is why he has been practicing with that medicine ball every morning lately. Last year he threw a wild pitch.

Vice President Curtis got a pass, too, but Mr. Gann will have to pay to get in.

MARATHON RUN UNDER WAY

Herbert Speer, winner of the 1928 Olympic marathon tryout race here, and Frank Jerry, crack New Castle distance runner, are among the favorites in the senior A. M. A. marathon championship being run this afternoon over the regulation 26-mile, 385-yard course.

The race started at the Boulevard and was routed from there over Liberty avenue to the Manchester bridge, up Galveston avenue to Western avenue, down Chateau street to the California avenue bridge and thence through Bellevue, Avalon, Ben Avon, Emsworth, Dixmont, Glenfield, Haysville and Glen Osborne to Chestnut street, Sewickley, where the field turned and followed the same course back to the starting line.

Karl Koski, of the Finnish-American A. C., holds the present record for the distance of 2:26:21. The best Olympic record was made by Hans Kohlemainen, who traveled the distance in 2:32:34 4-5.

Among the entrants in today's grind are John Deni, P. R. R. runner; Ed McBurney, Derry, Pa.; Dred Moore, Duquesne University; Clarence Nesbitt, Pittsburgh Silent Club; John Kovach, Presto, Pa.; LeMoyne Organ, Coraopolis, Johnny Nase, Westinghouse Club, and Tony Plascjak, McKees Rocks.

The first three to finish will receive gold medals, and the first 13 across the line will receive statuets. The next 15 will be awarded bronze medals. A team trophy will be given the organization whose representatives make the best showing.

PITT TITLE SWIM MEET FINALS TODAY

FOUR RECORDS FALL IN BIG CARNIVAL

By JESS CARVER.

The half-dozen scholastic championships and four university titles that were not settled last night, which happened to be opening night, will be decided this afternoon in Trees pool as the sixteenth annual University of Pittsburgh interscholastic swimming carnival and university aquatic championship meet is concluded.

The school events on the program for this afternoon include a pair of junior high relays, the 40-yard free style, 100-yard back stroke, 100-yard breast stroke and the 100-yard free style races. University swimmers will compete in the 40-yard free style, fancy dive, 100-yard free style and the 440-yard free style.

FOUR RECORDS

The opening competition last night brought out some right nifty performers and performances. They were so nifty four new records were pasted upon the well-known boards.

Academy High of Erie led in the qualifying of swimmers for the finals today, placing six men in the championship events. Erie Central and Carrick placed five each; South Hills qualified four, Munhall and Coraopolis three apiece, Taylor Allderdice and Westinghouse two and Clairton, South and Butler one each.

Erie Central High beat its own time of 1:23 for the senior high school 160-yard relay, toppling Peabody's natators in 1:22. The victory has made Erie Central the favorite to cop the point trophy today.

In the second trial heat of the 220-yard scholastic free style, Lindberg, of Munhall, broke the old mark when he was timed in 2:3 1-2, while the Carrick ace, Schmieler, shattered the 100-yard breast stroke mark by swimming the distance in 1:12 5.

The Tipoff

Jock Sutherland, the w. k. football coach, will sail for the British Isles within a month, visiting in England and Scotland. Jock was born in the latter country, some years ago, he admits.

Bob Carver, Pitt's cross-country and two-miler, not only is a good runner, but is a soloist of some attainment. He has a part in the Pitt Cap and Gown show.

Carnegie Tech winds up a very successful siege of spring football training with today's workout. The boys probably will be given a nice, warm, sweaty scrimmage to top off the two weeks of drill.

The rumor is prevalent that Dr. Zenar Wieringer, for the past three years line coach at Pitt and before that, a star tackle, is to leave the employ of the University. He was a candidate for the Shady Side job, which went to Jimmy Robertson, but has one or two other irons in the fire. Fire away.

Bob Roy, former Pitt half-miler, is captaining the P. A. A. track and field team, which meets Tech next week-end, an exciting engagement. Henry Breitenbach, who ran like a champ for the Dukes last year, is also a member of the Winged Head team, so is Vic Pickard, the Olympic pole vaulter.

TWO WORLD MARKS FALL

TOLEDO, April 12. — (AP.)— Two world swimming records were broken in a sanctioned A. A. U. swimming meet here last night.

The Illinois Women's Athletic Association 150-yard medley relay team of Violet Martin, Jane Faunts and Mary Lou Quinn, established a new mark of 1:41 1-5. The former record was 1:43 1-5.

John Schmeiler, of the University of Michigan, clipped two and 2-5 seconds from the accepted standard for the 200 yards breast stroke when he made the distance in 2:33 1-4, swimming with two pace makers.

PORTNEY STOPS BLAKE

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 12.—(AP.)—Jack Portney, of Baltimore, knocked out Mickey Blake, of Allentown, here last night in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Yde Loses Game Without Throwing One Ball

OAKLAND, Cal., April 12.—(AP.)—Emil Yde, Hollywood pitcher, formerly of the Pittsburgh Pirates, lost to Oakland, 9 to 8, yesterday, although he never pitched a ball.

Yde, called to take Page's place in the box in the eleventh inning with the bases filled, prepared to throw and then hesitated when the combined Oakland team let out a vociferous shout. The umpire called a balk on Yde and Martin walked in from third base to give Oakland its freak victory.

SAYLOR KNOCKS OUT SOLOMEN

Keally stepping in to end the slaughter.

MICKEY GIVES BEST

Saylor deserves bouts at the larger clubs with good opponents on the strength of his work climaxed by last night's brilliant showing, and he ought to get it. Solomen was a game, tough opponent, fighting desperately to the last, betrayed by a stomach that was a vulnerable target for his opponent's educated left fist. Although outclassed in skill and decisively beaten, he lost none of his friends in defeat, for he made good the proud boast of his manager, Eddie Weygant, that win or lose, Mickey always gives all he has.

Solomen weighed 152¾ and Saylor 148¾ at 3 p. m.

ALL BOUTS END IN KAYOS

The preliminaries in the hot hall were as punk as the main bout was good. All ended quickly in technical knockouts and the show was over well before 10 o'clock. If it hadn't been for the surprise in the windup, it would have been the Moose Club's poorest card.

Jackie Wilson, of the North Side, 156 pounds, knocked out by Solomen in the same ring two weeks before, came back in the semi-final to stop Young Burkel, of Midland, 152½, in two rounds, the referee calling a halt with Burkel covered up and unable to fight back.

Don Frazier, Cuban, 125, floored Frankie Lanz, of Sharpsburg, 125¼, for counts of nine and four, the bell saving Lanz, in the second round and then dropped him for nine and sent him down again in the third round, whereupon Mike Harding, Lanz's manager, climbed into the ring and admitted defeat.

Walter Bey, Negro, of Donora, 176 pounds, dropped Amos Jones, of Harlem, New York, for counts of two, nine and six in the first round of the opener and the referee stopped it.

The judges were Frank Brown and Red Robinson. A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers and Bill Schuster did the announcing.

RODGERS TO BOX GOLD

It was announced that Jackie Rodgers will go back to knocking out pushovers by taking on Marty Gold, veteran former flyweight, of Philadelphia, in the main bout of a show at the Moose Temple to be staged next Saturday night instead of Good Friday night.

Swimming Meet At P. A. A. Tonight

The Senior A. M. A. swimming championships will be staged tonight in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association pool.

Among the contestants will be an entire team entered by the Duquesne Library Club. This team includes Fedor, Brodi, Gombos, Maraz, Marczy, Stinner, Choko, Wargo and Sering.

Among the stars who will compete in the girls' diving event are Evaline Huckestein, Ida May Halstead, Louise Petrilli and Ruth Wiegman, all of the Willows Swimming Club.

LOCAL BROTHER AND SISTER ACT

RUTH WIEGMAN — TOM WIEGMAN

The Pirates may have their Waner Brothers' act, but the Willows Pool Swimming Club goes them one better with a brother and sister number that is commanding attention. It consists of Tom Wiegman, and his sister, Ruth, both sterling swimmers. Ruth recently won a 50-yard free style competition at the Natatorium, while Tom won the A. M. A. junior diving title in a meet at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. They are in training for a big outdoor season.

Sport Vignettes

The new major league baseball campaign that gets under way next Tuesday will find half of the 16 clubs in the two circuits with new managers . . . The shakeup since last season is the biggest in history . . . The Pirates have a new leader in Jewel Ens, who finished up after Donie Bush stepped down last September . . . Gabby Street, old Washington Senators' catcher, succeeds Bill McKechnie at St. Louis, Wilkinsburg Bill having resigned as chief of the Cardinals to accept a four-year contract at the helm of the Boston Braves, on which club he succeeds Judge Emil Fuchs, owner, who tried to run the outfit himself last year . . . Dan Howley, last year with the St. Louis Browns in the American League, takes over the reins in Cincinnati, where Jack Hendricks resigned . . . Four managers survive in the National League. They are John McGraw, Giants; Bert Shotten, Phillies; Joe McCarthy, Champion Cubs, and Wilbert Robinson, Robins . . . In the American League, Donie Bush, late of the Pirates, succeeds Lena Blackburne, who was released, as manager of the Chicago White Sox; Heinie Wagner, old Red Sox third baseman, takes the place of Bill Carrigan, resigned, at Boston; Bob Shawkey, former pitcher, succeeds Miller Huggins, deceased, with the Yankees, and Bill Killefer fills the shoes of Dan Howley, who was let out by the St. Louis Browns before he accepted the berth in Cincinnati . . . The American League holdovers are Connie Mack, Champion Athletics; Walter Johnson, Senators; Roger Peckinpaugh, Indians, and Bucky Harris, Tigers . . . Of the eight changes in the two leagues three are due to shifting of managers, Dan Howley going over from the American League to the National, Donie Bush from the National to the American and Bill McKechnie merely switching clubs in the National League . . . The Pittsburgh district made a right smart showing in the National A. A. U. senior championship boxing tournament in Boston this week, with Don Asto, featherweight, of Uniontown, and Al Becker, of McKees Rocks, middleweight, going to the final round in their classes before meeting defeat . . . Becker made the better showing of the pair and looks like a great ring prospect for a youngster . . . Vince Dundee, brother of Joe Dundee, the former welterweight champion, has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., for a rest following a vigorous campaign . . . He will take a vacation of at least a month . . . Atlanta, Ga., boasts a good featherweight boxer in the person of Jimmy Watts who has had more than 100 fights all over the country, including the Pacific Coast, and never has boxed in his home town . . . He makes his debut there next Tuesday night against Joe Lucas . . . One week from next Tuesday, Atlanta gets another treat when Ted Goodrich, its knockout star, meets Sergt. Sammy Baker there . . . Goodrich recently has knocked out Joe Dundee and other good ones . . . By the way, that Baker-Vincent Hambright windup at Motor Square Garden Monday night looms as a slugging classic . . . Local fans are familiar with the hard hitting propensities of both men and are prepared for a tough-punching battle.—HARRY KECK.

lot and was kinda homesick for a while, but there's a good gang here and always somethin' doin'. Speakin' about gettin' homesick, I was afraid that Foy Frazier and Gus Suhr would be down after leavin' California. Gus was as far East as the Three-Eye League when he was a kid breakin' in, but Foy never was far out of California, I guess. I've been goin' around with him quite a lot. When a fella's not in there every day it's tougher. Suhr is playin' every day, and, believe me, you have so much fun in a game you don't worry about anything from the time you dress until you finish up. But Frazier is gettin' along O. K. He's one of those wise birds like Andy Bednar that lets the other fella do most of the talkin' and they do most of the listenin'.

NEAR THE OPENER

I was hopin' in a way that Jewel would drop me at Fort Worth or Dallas when they left those other fellows go, as I believe I can play good ball where it's hot, but once a player always a player, and they can ship me to Montreal if they want to and I'll get by.

I'm goin' down street in a few minutes with Foy and Parson Lang to get one of those thousand-mile shirts. You see we're due to travel from New Orleans to Cincinnati in one job and a fellow might as well be prepared.

All the gang's pullin' for Lloyd Waner and Pie Traynor to be ready for the opener in Cincy, Tuesday. I had a pretty hot tip on whose gonna pitch the game for the Pirates, but I can't say anything about it now.

Only a few more days left till moving day! Better hurry and find a suitable place to live—from Tomorrow's Classified Ads.

KREMER FACES PELICANS

terday. Dick Bartell was back at his shortfield post, while Charley Engle moved over to third, he crowding Stewie Clarke to the bench. The Memphis shortstop came through with a double and two singles and in a general way was an improvement over Clarke, who has been in the doldrums.

It did not reflect one bit on Charles (Whitey) Glazner that his former mates were able to overcome the Pelicans, Whitey handed the Buccos six horse collars in as many frames, the little veteran being the same steady hurler he was as he toiled for the Pirates. He yielded only four hits as he faced the Pittsburghers. Recruit Bean, who succeeded Glazner, was given poor support.

Speaking of poor support, Steve Swetonic suffered a bit through a faltering cast, yet Steve was able to hold the enemy well in check through five frames. Lil Stoner pitched the last four rounds. Lil was in trouble in the ninth, the last putout being made with the tying and winning markers on the sacks.

Long's Sport Comment

State mittman who makes his first start for cash in New York on Tuesday night against Jerry Garfield, New Haven, in a six-rounder.

Allie Wolff

Unlike most of the college glovemen, Wolff was quite a boxer when he matriculated at State, having done well in amateur bouts around his home in Brooklyn. He brought to Leo Houck, veteran boxing instructor at the Nittany school, in the fall of 1925, a splendid middleweight physique and a willingness to learn that made him intercollegiate champion at his weight for three years without the loss of a single combat.

AS FAR BACK as two years ago New York boxing managers began to negotiate with him, but he remained with his studies, making creditable marks in all branches of his liberal arts course while outpunching the leather-slinging foes of his alma mater. Wolff found time to acquire nine athletic letters, three each in baseball, boxing and football. Allie apparently is a natural boxer who went to college rather than a collegian who went to boxing. If he can retain all the knowledge of ring mechanics that Houch was able to impart to him he will be well equipped, for Leo, as older boxing fans here will remember, was a capable foe for most any of the middleweights a few years back.

All-America Stars Enter Movies

A motion picture, featuring all-America football players chosen during the past two years, is planned by the Warner Brothers in their studio in Hollywood. Three Pittsburgh favorites will represent this section in the picture. They are Ray Montgomery and Mike Getto, of the University of Pittsburgh, and Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech. This trio leaves Chicago for the Pacific Coast, Monday.

NORTH-SOUTH FINAL TODAY

PINEHURST, N. C., April 12.—(AP.)—C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ontario, Canadian champion, and Eugene Homans, of Englewood, N. J., played spectacular golf yesterday to stroke their way to the final round of the North and South amateur tournament.

Somerville produced every trick in his bag and beat George Voigt, the defending champion, with a birdie on the nineteenth hole. Homans had less difficulty in winning from James T. Hunter, of North Adams, Mass., 3 and 2.

Both matches were played brilliantly, an assortment of birdies and eagles brightening the drab par figures.

Oxford-Cambridge Star in Hospital

PHILADELPHIA, April 12. — (AP.) — F. H. Meeres-Young, a member of the combined Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team touring the eastern part of the United States, is in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital with a spinal injury received in the match with Swarthmore College at Swarthmore last Tuesday.

Meeres-Young, who is in the engineering school at Oxford University, did not pay much attention to the injury when a Swarthmore player body-checked him, but complained of pains after the match, and Dr. Leroy Mercer, athletic director at Swarthmore College, advised him to enter the hospital.

Dukes to Resume Handball Monday

Four men reached the semi-finals of the first annual Duquesne University intramural handball tournament yesterday afternoon to determine the finalists. The final round will be staged Tuesday.

Franklyn Deet, Jack Burns, the tournament favorite; Ed Breinig and Ed Scholze defeated their opponents in warm contests to qualify for the semi-finals. Burns will play Deet and Breinig will play Scholze Monday.

Campus Comment

INTERCOLLEGIATE WRESTLING

A sport curriculum in college should have a diversity sufficient to interest every type of boy on the campus. "Rasslin'," to my mind, always has been associated with the pioneer, with the simple, rough, homespun life on the farm—husking bees, threshing and housewarmings.

Knute Rockne

It was not surprising, therefore, that the East, where the farm is almost a thing of the past, should have been eliminated long before the finals in the National Intercollegiate wrestling championships. The finalists were Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and Oklahoma. The Oklahoma Aggies, by winning three matches, retained the championship and upheld the prestige of their coach—Gallagher. The East may excel in polo and golf, but wrestling belongs to the corn belt.

WEST VIRGINIA PURSE TODAY AT WHEELING

WHEELING, W. Va., April 12.—Mid-summer weather greeted the race fans on the third day of the Golden Jubilee meeting of the Wheeling Jockey Club yesterday. The track was at its best as evidenced by the record-breaking race turned in by Paquette in the opening number. The record was equaled in the next race by Vandion. Paquette ran the five furlongs in 1:02 1-5.

Stage Struck, from F. H. Carpenter's barn, accounted for the feature, The Elm Grove Purse. He won by seven lengths.

MOTE FAMED

The West Virginia handicap, the most expensive race in the history of the Wheeling Driving Club, will be run tomorrow. The O. L. Foster entry, Mote and Spectre, are the favorites in this $2,000 event to be run over six furlongs.

Seventeen of the original 19 that were first named have accepted the issue and if good weather prevails, a crowd of 6,000 is expected to witness this great handicap. Seven races are on the program and every field is large.

The secondary feature will be the fifth on the program and eight have been named to go a mile and a sixteenth.

RECORDS FALL

Paquette and Vandion played havoc with track records. Paquette ran five furlongs in 1:02 1-5 in the opening heat to break the track record. Vandion came back in the next event to equal Paquette's mark.

The Seagram's 3-year-old, Handiworker, finished fast to win the third race, beating Jim Miller, the pace maker.

Stage was claimed out of the sixth race by W. A. McKinney for $1,200. McKinney was represented in the race by Pat O'Connor.

J. T. Ireland's Phi Delta outgamed Panorel in the stretch run to annex the fourth race over a three-quarter-mile run. The winner hung on to the pace maker until the stretch was reached and then began to move up. Lord Marmion took the snow money.

Dawson to Question Ruling of U. S. G. A.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 12.—(AP.)—Johnny Dawson, crack Chicago golfer, left for New York last night for an attempt to iron out differences regarding his amateur standing.

Dawson's status was questioned after he had tied for the medal in the thirtieth annual North and South amateur tournament here, and he withdrew from the event. When an official ruling was sought, H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the United States Golf Association Rules Committee, said the Chicagoan was not qualified to "play amateur golf."

Dawson planned to confer with officials of a sporting goods house, his employers in New York, and then possibly make some definite move regarding his standing.

"I am not satisfied to let matters rest where they are," he said, "and you may be sure of that."

Cardinals Lose Orsatti and Peel

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—(AP.)—On the eve of the opening of a two-game series with the Browns, the Cardinals got bad news aplenty yesterday. First, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, the club surgeon, reported that Outfielder Ernest Orsatti, injured recently in Florida, would be out of action for several weeks. X-ray photographs revealed Orsatti is suffering from a fractured ankle.

Later it was learned that Outfielder Homer Peel is suffering from mumps and will be confined to bed for several days.

COOLEY NOT TO QUIT

Dick Cooley, local umpire, has denied the report that he will abandon the mask and chest protector to assume the role of catcher with the North Side Civics. Cooley will continue to call them for the local sandlotters.

HERRERA STOPS HARRIS IN THIRD

ERIE, Pa., April 12.—Tony Herrera, clever Mexican lightweight, knocked out Sammy Harris, Akron Negro, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night, completely outclassing the Negro boy from the start and flooring him four times before the knockout.

Harris was unable to lay a glove on the Mexican, who caught all his opponents' leads on elbows and gloves, and completely baffled the Negro by his shifty tactics. Russell Bradford, Pontiac, Mich., gained the decision over Mickey Genaro, Barberton, O., in an uninteresting six-round semi-final.

Jimmy Dean, Erie Negro, outpunched Press Johnson, of Akron, to take the decision in another six-rounder, while Dutch Henderson, of Akron, outpointed Dick Anthony, of Meadville, Pa., over the four-round route, and Johnny Zack, Erie, outpointed Jackie Taylor, of Akron, in the four-round opener.

GOLF
As Champions Play It

How should a low brassie into the wind be played?

Answered by
LEO DIEGEL

To play a low brassie shot into a head wind the ball should be played well toward the center of the feet. It is advisable in making this shot to maintain a shut club face, keeping the elbows well into the body all through the swing. As accuracy and height of ball are the guiding principle behind the shot, the club should be gripped a little lower down on the leather and the swing shortened. Never take the club past the horizontal on the up-swing, and keep it well under control at all times. A low brassie shot into the wind, with a slight hook, will run astonishing distances.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Worm Turns

IT WAS Irving Cobb who said, "Why should the worm turn? He is the same on both sides!"

Peter Jenkins was a worm, using the word in the sense that he was abnormally meek and humble and also pretty much of a sap.

Peter was married.

Why not?

It is easier to catch a slowly plodding "worm" than a gay and wise grasshopper.

Josie Perkins saw that Peter had a steady income. Josie and her practical mother figured that while Peter would never set the world afire he would always work faithfully and a steady income is better than a flash of high finance and then cold ashes.

Peter was delighted and proud of himself when he had persuaded Josie to accept him.

Poor worm! Little did he suspect that Josie's mother had said to her, "You better make him propose now, so's you can be married in June."

Now Josie was a good girl. No one could say that about her. Her mother owned the little house in the suburbs and had sufficient from the Perkins insurance to provide.

"It isn't as though you were going away from your mother," Peter said to Josie, "because she'll be right here in town, not three streets away from you."

Josie stared at him with wide open eyes. She looked terribly sad.

"What is it, dear?" Peter asked.

"Why, why I didn't think you could be so cruel as to part me from my own dear mother."

"But—but she has her niece home, Josie."

"Of course you are trying to be funny!" Josie took another tack. Her Perkins jaw showed its stubborn, hard lines. "Mother is going to live with us. The idea of wasting words over it. The very idea of thinking—"

"Why, of course, all right, my dear—certainly," stammered Peter.

Back From Honeymoon

"Two weeks is enough. Peter, for any honeymoon," Josie said, "besides, it's a sin to waste the salary of that extra clerk."

So they came home where Josie's mother had a good dinner for them. The Perkinses, mother and daughter, were no fools, they intended to feed Peter well. Besides, most of the provisions came right from Peter's store.

Mrs. Perkins rented her house. The rent, added to her income from the insurance was, at this time, more than Peter's profits from his store. Little good that did Peter. She salted away her money and Josie was forever buying things for her mother, dresses and shoes, a winter coat and things the old lady should, by rights, have bought for herself.

"It seems to me," he said mildly, after Josie had paid $200 for a Hudson seal coat for her mother, "that she can afford to buy a coat much more than we can."

Josie stared at her husband. Her jaw hardened and her eyes became scornful.

"Don't start anything to be mean or bossy, Peter Jenkins. I never would have thought you could be so mean and miserly. It's a shame if I can't be good to the mother who bore me! If you think you can browbeat me—"

"All right—all right, Josie. I only thought that since your mother's income is nearly a hundred a week and I have a tough time getting seventy-five net profit, that—"

"Dollars and cents! Dollars and cents! Is that all there is in life? Are you going to grind me down—"

"All right—all right," Peter said, reaching for his hat.

"Where are you going?"

"I've got to take account of stock," Peter said.

That was true enough. But Peter wanted to be alone and to think.

Josie's brother came on from New York. Things were dull there, he said. The market had smashed and he was waiting for a new opening.

"Poor Clarence, he does try so hard," sighed Josie.

Peter was thinking that he tried hard to eat five meals a day.

"Well, Clarence can help me in the store until he can get his old job back in the city."

"As if my brother would be a common grocery clerk!" Josie yelped.

Brother Loafs

"Clarence wasn't reared to such menial labor—he does brain work in the city," Mrs. Perkins said.

"Whose brain does he use?" Peter asked, mildly.

Zowie!

What an explosion! Peter was berated and jawed and scorned. He was told just where he got off until he was apologizing meekly enough.

At the end of their first year of marriage Peter had learned something. He had been in the habit of telling Josie—and her mother—exactly how much profit he had made in the store for the week. He went over his books late Saturday night when Josie and her mother were asleep and Clarence was playing pool downtown on money Josie handed out to him.

And Sunday morning at breakfast if Peter didn't mention it, Josie would finally say: "Well, are you tonguetied? Or are you trying to be sneaky? Don't you suppose we are interested to know how you are getting along?"

So Peter would refer to a slip of paper and announce that he had cleared 78 or 96 or sometimes $114.

Whether it was only seventy or up to over a hundred it was all gone by the end of the next week gone so far as Peter could ever get hold of it and they had only meats to buy for the table since groceries, vegetables and the like came from his store.

So Peter would whittle down his profits a little—in putting them on the slip to be shown, and the difference he would tuck away.

The time Tom King had broken his leg and had to be out of work six weeks, and Tom with a wife and two kids, Peter had given him groceries and also twenty dollars a week. Tom and Peter had been buddies in France. Peter has been no worm there—not at all. Peter had a citation.

But facing shot and shell is one thing while facing a browbeating selfish wife with Amazonian instincts is quite another thing.

Wife Objects Again

Josie heard of it. She and her mother went for poor Peter, hammer and tongs. He pleaded that Tom was his buddy and spoke of sentiment and the time Tom dragged him into a shell hole when a German machine gun nest opened up on him as he was partly gassed.

"There you go—boasting of the war—trying to make yourself a hero and giving away the bread and butter out of our mouths," shouted Josie, "and bleating about 'sentiment'—"

"You mentioned 'sentiment' in connection with keeping your brother here and—"

"You brute!" screamed Josie, "I ought to kill you!"

"Go to it," muttered Peter.

And when Peter's sister in another city died and left a little boy, Peter said he would take the child.

"You'll do nothing of the sort!" Mrs. Perkins said.

"This is no charitable institution," Josie snapped.

Peter went to Uniontown to the funeral of his sister. She had been a widow. Little Jack, the boy, 5 years old, took to Peter from the start. He curled up in Peter's lap and told Peter that his mother had to go away where she wouldn't be sick any more.

Peter agreed with him.

Peter had secretly sent money to his sister during her sickness. The little home was free and clear. Peter stayed over with little Jack, although his wife wired him three times to come home. He sold the place and came home with little Jack.

Another big scene.

"I'll get a—a place for him," Peter promised.

"What did your sister leave?" Josie asked.

"Nothing except little Jack," Peter said, evasively, "but he's worth a million dollars to me!"

"You get him a home some where within a week," Josie ordered.

Whips Brother-in-Law

Two days later he came home and found little Jack with a black and blue place on his head.

"He hit me, sobbed Jack, pointing at Clarence.

"Aw, I just tapped him—in th' way all th'—"

Clarence didn't get to say any more. Peter Jenkins saw red and blue stars and other things and he socked fat brother-in-law Clarence so hard that Clarence fell over a chair and they had to pour water on him.

Mrs. Perkins began to berate Peter.

"Get your things together and get the heck out of here," Peter said quietly, only he didn't say "heck." "And if you aren't out of here by dark I'll throw you out."

Clarence got up and made a rush for Peter. Peter kicked him out of the house. Peter went up to his room and tossed all his belongings out of the window.

"You brainless fat grafter, if you come back—"

Peter didn't have to finish. Clarence was running down the road.

Mrs. Perkins flounced out.

"Send my things home," she said.

"Hire someone to get them out before tomorrow night or I'll throw 'em out," said Peter.

Josie stood in a corner of the room, staring with unbelieving eyes.

"You," said Peter, "either run along with your grafting mother or you snap into it and get me a good dinner right away—I'll give you two minutes to decide, then I'll first give you a spanking that you should have had the day I married you and I'll toss you clear to the sidewalk—the idea of letting anyone hit little Jack—I'll—Well, what you going to do?"

"Dar-r-rling," she cooed, "I never knew you could be so wonderful."

She began to hustle up a good dinner.

Yes, Irving Cobb's wisecrack about there being no need for the worm to turn because he was the same on both sides was funny, all right, but Irv should have added that there are always exceptions.

With the co-operation of the University of Pittsburgh, the Red Cross will conduct a course in the rescuing and resuscitation of drowning persons. The course is for those who wish to qualify as Red Cross life savers, and it will be held April 22 to 26.

This is timely preparation for a serious menace to life, as drownings are unusually high in the spring months, said to be due largely to the fact that some swimmers take to the water when it is too cold. That is something that the coming course will recognize, together with the danger of swimming in hazardous pools having no supervision and the attempted rescue of drowning persons by those who are not qualified.

The drowning rate has not increased in 10 years despite largely increased use of public pools. The logical assumption is that effective preventive measures, such as the course is designed to be, are responsible. But the rate still is very high, about 7,300 annually in the United States. Intelligent attention to this matter likely could reduce the rate greatly.

Annual Flower Shows In Two Conservatories

An announcement that will interest thousands is that annual spring flower shows will begin Sunday in the Phipps Conservatories in Schenley and West Parks. The exhibitions of bloom are to continue until April 27.

Flowers are one of the most beautiful satisfactions in our lives. We use them for decorations and as tokens of esteem and love. They have been a favorite subject of painters and poets as examples of the highest type of beauty, which even has Divine confirmation.

"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Our flower shows always have been unusually interesting thetically stimulating. For which those who arrange leserve the thanks of the public.

Public Favors Norris' 'Lame Duck' Amendment

Again the House of Representatives has an opportunity to submit to the states what has become known as the "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution.

A Senate joint resolution offered by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, was adopted by the Senate last June by a vote of 64 TO 9. A House resolution along the same lines has just been REPORTED FAVORABLY TO THE HOUSE from its committee on election of President, Vice President and Representatives in Congress.

The Norris resolution proposes an amendment to the Constitution which would shorten the time between election and inauguration of President and Vice President and between the election and convening of the new Congress.

It would abolish the short session of Congress. It would assemble Congress at least once in every year on the second day of January.

Instead of inaugurating the President and Vice President on the fourth of March the Norris amendment would change inauguration day to the fifteenth of January.

FIVE TIMES WITHIN THE LAST SIX YEARS THE NORRIS RESOLUTION HAS BEEN ADOPTED BY THE SENATE. Only once has it been permitted to come to a vote in the House. Then a large majority voted for it, but it fell short of the two-thirds vote required by the Constitution.

Adoption of the "lame duck" amendment would mean the abolition of one of the worst nuisances in our political system—the "lame duck" Congress. And that would go far toward preventing those filibusters and legislation by blackmail that so frequently disgrace the short session following a congressional election.

Existing dates for the inauguration of the President and the Vice President and the convening of the newly elected Congress were fixed by the framers of the Constitution under conditions entirely different from those that now prevail.

In the early days of our government the absence of rapid means of transportation and rapid means of communication made it necessary to allow a much longer time between election day and inauguration day than modern conditions require.

In England the Parliament usually convenes within two or three weeks after its election.

Most of our own state legislatures assemble early in the January following the November election.

But the obsolete system under which our federal government operates prevents a newly elected Congress from assembling in regular session UNTIL MORE THAN A YEAR AFTER ITS ELECTION.

By its adoption time after time of the Norris resolution the Senate has expressed public sentiment which is in favor of the Constitutional changes for which the "lame duck" amendment provides.

If the reactionary Republican leadership of the House again prevents the Norris resolution to come to a vote during the current session it will defy public sentiment and disregard the national welfare.

He Who Runs Should Read -:- Drawn by Nelson Harding

He who runs from brazen greed
Might profitably pause to read
What bolder spirits had to say
To bandits of another day.

A little courage, now, as then,
Were it displayed by honest men
Would stop the modern blackmail crimes
As they were stopped in former times.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

A Step Off a Wharf

NOW that the Leviathan has a night club, Tex Guinan may join the Navy.

For the first time in history you will be able to stay out all night on a boat.

"Bugs" Baer

Survivors of the trial trip say the night club is a success. We will yet have a merchant marine. If they don't padlock the premises.

The bouncer in the Cabaret Leviathan is very courteous. First he hands you a life preserver.

That is what the world has waited for. We have always wanted to take an ocean trip indoors.

Seasickness isn't so bad if it's guaranteed.

The music is furnished by Ben Bernie's band. The hostesses are beautiful. Ringside seats are reasonable. When Decatur said we would never pay tribute Stephen had never met a headwaiter.

Who wants a steamer chair on the sun deck when you can get a liquid sunstroke in the steam room?

We will be there when the saxophones are barking in the dog watch.

Even though the ballast has shifted there is no real danger when the boat has a heavy wine list to starboard.

There will be no danger from bergs when every alert passenger has an ice pick in his hand.

Our honky-tonks have encircled the globe and the blare of the maritime blues is heard on the seven seas. And when the commodore pulled a flask off his hip only the bravery of the crew averted a panic.

The Europa saved 18 minutes on its last trip but its waiters lost more time than that getting back from the kitchen. The night club on the Leviathan is run on the American plan with a dance floor the size of a postage stamp. It should get the out-of-town trade.

The night club in the Navy would have been approved by departed heroes like John Paul Jones and Farragut. They know it develops fighters.

We will be there in the Leviathan's night club when the old scow sails. Don't give your right name.

Isn't It So?

No woman can make a worse wife than a man can a husband.

Lots of people who boast that they love their enemies will go back on a friend.

RUTH AMONG THE PENELOPES

By Herbert Kaufman

WILLIAM T. STEAD, who had the unique gift of blurting BLUNT Ruths to high personages—and making 'em like it—once urged the late Czar of Russia to take a course in PROMPTNESS on an American evening newspaper, and learn how to "Go to press on time."

The SAME suggestion is passed, for what it's worth, to the Penelopes of Congress wasting precious time and opportunities in scandal mongering, spelling bees and spitting matches, while pressingly required measures remain uncompleted upon legislative looms.

The country doesn't give a hoot how many law makers can spell "tranquillity" and "kimono." But it seriously advises its representatives that the only word they need to know is "ACTION."

Ruth Hanna McCormick's probable election to a Senate seat promises the chance, for which her sex has long waited, to show up the collection of mental grannies and old women whom MOST of the states have lately voted into that body.

MR. DENEEN will tell you that there were no HOBBLE SKIRTS on that lady's searching MIND when she seized a political broom and set out to sweep him into retirement.

Nor any COBWEBS on it either. As her elucidations on the League of Nations and general economics brilliant attest.

We may be entering an era of petticoat rule, but the able governship of Nellie Ross, the congressional records of Florence Kahn and Edith Nourse Rogers, and New York's Mrs. Pratt tend to lend enchantment to the view.

Mrs. Charles Sabin's presence in the Capitol would ALSO enliven the scene. And Ohio can't MUCH longer overlook its duty to place Alice Longworth's shrewd wit and Rooseveltian capacities at public service.

Egypt was NEVER so efficient as when WOMEN managed the state household. Nor Great Britain ever more potent than under Victoria's alert rule.

The reign of Peter the Great is obscured by the FAR more illustrious regime of the GREATER Catherine.

And a male successor has YET to fill the shoes in which Elizabeth trod world-wide paths for English glory.

Get In Or Get Out.

The alien groups lifting loudest voice against further restriction of immigration must blame THEMSELVES for fast-closing gates.

Their refusal to assimilate—together with a considerable inclination to support unlocal doctrines—are the CHIEF influences shutting their kinsman out of the country.

Too MANY of such folk come here from the LEAST progressive regions of Europe. And with no intention of making America their permanent home.

They do not marry our women, and the FEWEST of them send back for their OWN.

No responsibility binds them to the fortunes of the United States. The one INDUCEMENT THAT DREW them, and that HOLDS them, is the WAGE scale.

Naturalization cannot capture their hopes or allegiance. Their views are molded by foreign language newspapers oftener than the English-speaking press. They are not aware of our backgrounds, the supreme fervors of our history.

They care nothing for our past, because it does not concern their future plans.

THEIR compelling interest in this country is MOMENTARY and MONETARY.

With no investments or ties at stake and therefore with no fortunes or families to inherit the consequences of community hurt, and system that offers the quickest PERSON profit, soonest enlists their applause.

There is no room in America for people who regard the republic simply as a PURSE, or an EXPERIMENTAL STATION for radicalism.

We continue to welcome all intending partners of our common enterprise. But we have no trust or crust to waste upon more opportunists who decline to contribute fealty and veins to our destiny.

What we MOST need is a cut-bait-or-fish Americanization Act, carrying a definite period within which foreigners must take the oath of allegiance or return home.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

LIFE is like a big house. There are many rooms in it. You grow by passing from one room to another.

When you are a tiny child you live in the warm, sweet room of babyhood. After a while you begin to grow restless. You want to get out of that tiny room into the next room, where you will be a big boy or a big girl of six. So presently your little feet slip unconsciously across the threshold, and you are in that next room. And then, soon, you are crossing another threshold into adolescence—into maturity—and so on and on into the many rooms of your life.

You're remembering some of those rooms now, aren't you? Those first few working years—they were a room all by themselves, weren't they? You did a lot of growing in that room. Your college years. Those first, honeymoon years of marriage.

Those bad, jumbled years when you were getting into one mess after another—thank Heaven, you're out of that room! That black period after little Ed died when time and life itself ceased to exist.

Sometimes you could see the door through which you passed. That chance to go into business with Jones. That was a real door into a new life. The night Will asked you to marry him, Rose. That was another real door, marking off the old life from the new. Graduation from Hi—that was another door, wasn't it, little partner? Doors—so many doors. Pleasant doors. And some that aren't so pleasant.

Pain and loss....failure and humiliation....struggle and grief ....we can't realize that these dark places are doorways. We think they're traps. We hate them and try to avoid them and struggle, bitterly, when we find ourselves passing through them.

But, if we have the courage to go on, we do find that they are doors—doors that open into the noblest rooms of all.

If you want life you must go through a doorway. The rooms will not open to you of their own accord. You must find your way into them, through a passage—and often, in passing, you will be scarred. But it's worth it!

Text For Today

Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee.—Psalms lxxiii:25.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Paul J. Mackensen, pastor, Christ Lutheran Church, Knoxville.)

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THEIR heart is not divided, wholly or partly, into right and left halves, but is a single series of pumping chambers, just like the heart of a fish; on the side of the neck is a series of clefts in just the position of a fish's gill-slits; there is a series of arteries running down between the clefts just as in fish; and, indeed, the whole arrangement of blood vessels and nerves and their relation to the clefts is piscine, and not in the least indicative of the arrangement they themselves will show later.

These clefts never bear gills; the resemblance is not complete; the reader must not run away with the idea that the human embryo ever has the "gill-slits of a fish."

H. G. Wells

But it has a transitory rude passage through that type of structure. It is not, so to speak, a reproduction; it is an imperfect memory.

Once more this means nothing — indeed makes nonsense—if we are to believe that land animals were created as land animals.

But it at once becomes pregnant with meaning if we accept that fact of Evolution; for then we can understand that snakes and hens and human beings and all other air-breathing vertebrates are fundamentally fish-like, that they start on the fishward road and turn away from it towards their higher structural achievement.

When they reproduce the old tendency asserts itself; they start towards the old waterway and turn aside towards the uplands. Because of that recurrent tendency each individual animal repeats within its individual cycle of life these uneffaced tendencies from the remote part of its race.

In Amphibia the recapitulation is much more thorough-going; they have not only the clefts but the gills, and most of them actually do breathe by means of gills in their early tadpole stages, and physiologically are indeed fish.

Nearly half a century later, Haeckel, looking at the facts of embryology in the light of evolutionary idea, broadened and reformulated and perhaps rather exaggerated von Baer's law.

Haeckel's revision was this, that every animal in the course of its individual development tends to recapitulate the development of the race; and from this time onwards the facts on which the law is based have been called the facts of recapitulation.

But it is a general and not a complete recapitulation. Evolution can affect every part of a life cycle, and if a stage wastes much time or energy, Nature, who is no historian, will abbreviate it or cut it out quite ruthlessly.

Exactly how far Haeckel's law takes us—what are its limitations; whether recapitulation ever shows us an animal's adult ancestors, whether present development ever does more than recapitulate ancestral development; what is the cause of recapitulation; and why some of the characters and structures are regularly recapitulated in development, others only occasionally or not at all—all this we cannot here discuss.

What we are here concerned with are the positive, visible facts. Tens of thousands of animals do recapitulate during their development—do, without any apparent advantage in so doing, show organs and constructions which occur elsewhere in the adults of less specialized creatures; and in none of these tens of thousands of cases is this departure intelligible save on the view that in so doing they are repeating phases that were once final forms in the earlier evolution of the race.

There is probably no single case of development among many-celled animals which does not show some recapitulatory feature. Even the origin of all sexually produced individuals in a single cell, the fertilizer egg, in a certain sense recapitulates the origin of many-celled from single-celled forms. But there are plenty of more definite examples.

Every human being and every other vertebrate at a certain stage of his or her development has an unjointed notochord in place of the future jointed backbone, even though in all save the lampreys and certain fish this notochord-rod vanishes entirely.

And the most primitive chordate, amphioxus, has a notochord all its life-long and never develops a backbone.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 12.—The growing popularity of the medium priced tea room is wrinkling brows of proprietors of expensive cafes. The tea room was once confined only to Greenwich Village. It was a small candle lit basement decorated in chintz and as Victorian as a lacy valentine.

Such places were presided over by a sort of High Priestess in sandals and a Grecian robe. She was usually a disappointed artist, sculptor or writer and her patrons were allied in some remote manner with the arts. Painting ashtrays, making lamp shades or pounding brass.

But in the past five years the tea room has taken on a Tudor splendor and jumped northward. Almost every block in the business and residential section has several. As they grow in number they grow in grandeur. Decorations are brought from Europe to floss 'em up.

The tea room today is managed by alert men and women with a practical knowledge of business. The clientele has changed. Innumerable theater parties in evening dress will be found dining there. Executives go there for conferences—away from jazz music and other fumidoddles.

Nearly every fashionable hotel has a tea room or so nearby. They prosper largely on trade of patrons registered at these inns. The tea rooms offer luncheons from 60 cents to a dollar and dinners from a dollar to two dollars. The food is served by attractive young waitresses.

The culinary appeal is especially for those who enjoy "home cooking." Many owners are from the South and have succeeded in transplanting colored cooks who are adept at making corn bread, beaten biscuits, real pan gravy, home made pies and cakes and the like.

Surprising enough, the best and most widely patronized tea rooms are in the vicinity of Madison avenue, Sutton place, Park and upper Fifth avenues. There are a number paying from $20,000 to $50,000 a year rental. And are packed to capacity.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DO YOU show by your lack of interest in the person who sits beside you at luncheon that you are not pleased with his or her society?

This person may not be companionable to you and you may prefer others, but that is not sufficient reason for you to appear bored.

Not all have achieved the success you have attained perhaps or belong to the same little crowd you call your own.

As a man, perhaps the job your neighbor holds and the business he conducts may be small in comparison to your own, but that does not make him less entitled to your respect.

He may represent a higher type of manhood than you do.

It is a question of fair dealing, honorable family relations and civic responsibility shouldered at the right time that makes a man stand high.

The woman who looks so dull and uninteresting that you try not to be seated near her at club meetings may be carrying on in her home life so that her family may advance well cared for.
